BLACK LEGION SECRETS TOLD GRAND JURIES

WARRANTS FOR 13 ISSUED IN FLOGGING CASE

Detroit, June 4 (AP)—The dread Black Legion was accused in another group of flogging warrants today as the secrets of the hooded, night riding terror band were being recounted in grand jury inquiries in three Michigan counties.

While witnesses described murders, floggings and alleged political interference to the grand jurors, 15 more warrants were issued charging that Robert Penlan, an Ecorse, Mich., steel worker, was flogged by a large Black Legion gathering last October because he had not attended meetings of the group.

The new warrants were disclosed when three of the 15 were taken into custody to join 17 others in the county jail awaiting completion of examination on abduction and murder charges for the "ritual" slaying of Charles A. Poole, young WPA worker. Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea said 12 more will be arrested on John Doe warrants.

Bond Set at $50,000

Penlan was described at the prosecutor's office as "scared to death," and unwilling to identify the three men arrested. The prosecutor said, however, that the three men held, Thomas F. Cox of Detroit and Earl Angstadt of Ecorse, fellow workers at the steel mill where Penlan is employed, and Frederick A. Gulley of Ecorse, a former employe, admitted Penlan was the man they took from his dinner table at pistol point for disciplinary action.

The three were arraigned in common pleas court and after first pleading guilty were permitted to change the plea by standing mute, which automatically entered a plea of innocent in the record. Their bond was set at $50,000 each and they were held for examination next Monday.

Angstadt told investigators he was in charge of the flogging party which was ordered by a robed and hooded officer of the legion he could not identify.

Describing the "punishing" of Penlan, Angstadt told the prosecutor:

"There were about 150 automobiles there. The officers were all robed so I could not identify them. An officer told me to take Cox and Gulley and bring Penlan to this meeting."

Angstadt told the prosecutor he had been a member of the Black Knights in Ohio before he came to Michigan but that there was a wide difference between this organization and the Black Legion.

"In Ohio the Black Knights are vigilants and work in close harmony with law officials," he said. "My father and grandfather were members there. I was 21 when my father instructed me on the ritual before I was admitted to membership. Here in Michigan they are a different outfit."

Dean Called "Liar"

The story told by Angstadt, Cox and Gulley was almost a repetition of that related by the group held for the killing of Poole. It was a story of enforcing obedience to the hooded order through floggings. Penlan, they said, was bound to a "whipping tree," while a stout wielder applied the lash.

Michigan's Delegates Won't Let Bandwagon Run Away From Them

BY GILBERT T. SHILSON (Associated Press Staff Writer)

Lansing, Mich., June 4 (AP)—Michigan's 38 delegates to the national Republican convention in Cleveland next week will cast their votes for Governor Alf M. Landon, of Kansas, promptly if convinced that Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg is out of the running.

Spokesmen said they would not be left behind if a bandwagon movement start. They propose to do everything they can to further the interests of Vandenberg, but there will be no bitter end commitment in case the delegates believe he has no chance.

Landon Far Ahead

According to Governor Fitzgerald, chairman of the Michigan delegation, this state's 38 votes probably will be released by Vandenberg himself in case there is a landslide trend in another direction. Technically the Michigan group is bound only to present Vandenberg's name to the convention. By agreement, however, Michigan support will be accorded the senator as long as he has a reasonable chance, or until he, himself, releases the delegation.

Governor Fitzgerald, Howard C. Lawrence, chairman of the state central committee and others retained hope that Vandenberg will emerge from the convention as a compromise candidate, despite widespread predictions that Landon may win on the first or second ballots.

If reports of Landon's strength are true Michigan probably will not be the state to make the "break" for him. Vandenberg undoubtedly will receive the Michigan votes as long as there is any prospect he may win. It is certain the state delegation will cast a solid vote for him on the first ballot, and probably the second. Thereafter the voting will be directed by Fitzgerald and other leaders—with indications that they may switch to Landon at any time if convinced Vandenberg is out of the race.

The Michigan delegation likewise will support Vandenberg solidly for the vice presidential nomination in case his name is offered, and until leaders feel he has no chance. As one spokesman put it:

"We are for Vandenberg, first, last and all time time, but if he can't be nominated we are not going to let the bandwagon whizz by us and run two blocks to catch up."

CLAIMS LANDON NEW DEAL ALLY

Borah's Campaign Manager Raps Governor of Kansas

BY W. B. RAGSDALE (Associated Press Staff Writer)

Cleveland, June 4 (AP)—Gov. Alf M. Landon was called an "avowed friend of the new deal" tonight by Carl G. Bachman, Republican campaign manager for Senator Borah of Iowa, in a statement which sad this explained the silence of the governor on his platform views.

"Up to a few months ago, Governor Landon supported the new deal, orally and in writing, praised and complimented President Roosevelt on its constructive character and in the name of Kansas expressed deep thankfulness for the abundance of money that flowed into the coffers of that state from the federal government," Bachmann said.

His statement was dropped into a Landon-tinted convention scene in the midst of talk of Robert A. Taft of Ohio and Rep. James W. Wadsworth of New York as possible vice presidential nominees.

Watt - White Arrives

Already Bachmann had endeavored to have the presidential candidates invited to appear before the convention before the nomination is tendered. Just a little earlier, John Hamilton of Kansas, the leader of the Landon forces, said the Kansas member of the resolutions committee would be selected at a caucus after the delegation arrives. He added that this delegate would probably be informed of Governor Landon's platform views.

William Allen White, the Kansas editor who has been spoken of as a possible choice of the delegation for the platform committee, arrived late today as did a large part of the delegation. He refused to discuss the platform, however, until he had conferred further with Governor Landon. The delegation will caucus tomorrow.

Bachmann prefaced his statement with the assertion it was time "for someone to tell the truth about the political views of Governor Landon" that if some Republicans did not do

Townsend Clubs Hold Convention

Marquette, Mich., June 4 (AP)—The twelfth congressional district convention of Townsend clubs will convene at 10:30 a. m. Friday in the Knights of Pythias hall here with delegates from about half of the 55 clubs in the upper peninsula present. Visitors from clubs in all parts of the district will swell the total attendance to about 500.

Beginning with the morning session in the K. P. hall, the Townsendites will continue their consideration of candidates in a lengthy afternoon session and wind up the one-day meeting with an evening session in the Graveraet high school auditorium.

William Poyseor, of Crystal Falls, archdeacon of the Episcopal church, will deliver the opening address. The evening speaker will be L. W. Jeffery, state and regional director, of Chicago, who was one of the first men to carry the Townsend movement in California.

NEW PREMIER HOPES TO END LABOR STRIFE

INDUSTRIAL PARALYSIS FEARED IN FRANCE

BY CHARLES FOLTZ

Paris, June 4 (AP)—Socialist Leon Blum, immediately after taking over the guidance of troubled France, ordered two of his ministers tonight to act at once to avert a complete industrial paralysis of the nation.

Without waiting for formalities the new premier obtained the immediate transfer of powers to his minister of the interior, Roger Salengro, and labor minister, J. B. Lebas.

Blum himself decided to appeal to the 600,000 strikers tomorrow in a radio address, his first public speech as premier.

Strikes Spreading

These half million workers occupied factories, and strikes were spreading as President Albert Lebrun officially handed the government reins to the 64-year-old well-tailored Socialist shortly after 9 p. m.

The strikes grew as Blum and his cabinet of 35 ministers took over the government from the outgoing Premier Albert Sarraut.

The strikers hoped to profit by the situation. The new government was being put to a rigid test even before its formal assumption of its duties tomorrow.

Twenty of the new ministers whom Blum named are Socialists who never before were in the government, and the remainder were radical Socialists. Three are women—the first ever to be included in a French cabinet.

RICHBERG RAPS SUPREME COURT

Says Judicial Dep't Is Overstepping Its Legal Bounds

BY J. R. BRACKETT (Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, June 4. (AP)—Donald R. Richberg, former NRA chief and still a counselor to the president, today called on both political parties to condemn what he termed the supreme court's "unconstitutional exercise of judicial power."

In a statement, Richberg asserted "The American people are being rapidly forced to answer the question as to whether they can preserve self-government in the face of an unprecedented exercise of power by the supreme court."

Long insistent that the constitution, properly interpreted, will permit "necessary" legislation without amendment, Richberg reiterated this view, holding that a constitutional amendment "is no answer to the abuse of power by the course."

The lawyer's attack followed only a few days after President Roosevelt had said the court's decision holding New York's minimum wage law invalid, together with the Guffey coal and NRA decisions, had created a legal no man's land where neither state nor federal government could function.

Overstepping Bounds

Richberg stressed, however, he had not discussed his statement with the president, whom he still sees from time to time.

"The supreme court was not established as a hierarchy to lay down the laws by which a subservient people should interpret their gospel," he stated.

"The supreme court cannot exercise any of the constructive powers of government. It can only establish a dictatorship of negatation, a government of paralysis.

"When justices of the supreme court substitute their political and economic opinions for the opinions of the elected law-makers, and deny, first, to the federal government and, then, to the states an adequate power of self-government, they go far beyond the constitutional limits of judicial authority. x x x

"Most well-informed people will agree that the judicial power to enforce the constitution as the supreme law must be preserved. Constitutional protection of states rights and individual freedom must be preserved.

"But these constitutional requirements must not be made the basis of denying the right of the states and the nation, each within its own jurisdiction, to under take necessary to promote and protect the general welfare."

State Funeral Will Be Held Today for Byrns

BY RICHARD L. TURNER (Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, June 4 (AP)—Ringed about by the great of the nation, the body of Joseph W. Byrns, who died suddenly early today, will lie in state tomorrow in the house chamber over which he presided as speaker.

The Tennessean, gentle, genial friend of the mighty and the lowly who left the tobacco fields of his native state to scale the heights of public office, died of a cerebral hemorrhage at 12:15 a. m.

Congressional leaders quickly suspended the week's energetic adjournment drive and sadly arranged the tribute of tomorrow's funeral, to be attended by President Roosevelt, members of the house and senate, heads of the executive departments and many more.

Roosevelt to Attend

The rostrum and well of the house will be banked with flowers, and in the midst of this profusion of early summer blossoms the casket will be placed. On the rostrum will be the newly elected Speaker Bankhead of Alabama, Vice President Garner and the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the house.

Just in front of the casket Mrs. Byrns and members of the family will be seated, and behind them, places will be reserved for the supreme court, members of the cabinet, the senate and house and of the diplomatic corps.

Praising the late speaker as "fearless, incorruptible ,unselfish," President Roosevelt announced that he would attend, and then journey by special train to Nashville for interment services in the district where stands a symbol of democracy, The Hemitage, home of Andrew Jackson.

The usually noisy house, hushed by word the speaker's death, met only long enough to hear brief speeches of eulogy, adopt a resolution of sorrow and elect a successor to serve for the remainder of the session, Rep. William B. Bankhead of Alabama, who had been majority leader.

The senate, engulfed in a bitter controversy over the new tax bill, met two hours earlier than usual to renew its disputatious debate, but upon the announcement of the speaker's death it promptly recessed, met again, briefly, to adopt a resolution of mourning and again recessed, this time until the hour of tomorrow's ceremonies.

All hope of adjournment before the convening of the Republican national convention next Tuesday was abandoned. The goal, said majority leader Robinson of the senate, was to get the tax bill to conference, recess during the Republican meeting and adjourn June 15 or 16.

Into the adjournment drive, Byrns had thrown much of his energy. Friends said this was responsible, in part at least, for the entirely unexpected heart attack, which complicated by a cerebral hemorrhage, struck him down.

A few hour's before, the speaker had apparently been as hearty as ever. He presided over yesterday's session of the house and adjourned it with his usual vigorous bang of the gavel, after, as his last official act, appointing a committee to attend the funeral of Rep. Piatt Andrew of Massachusetts ,who died Tuesday night.

Relatives At Bedside

At 5:30 p. m., he suffered the heart attack. In a few hours he apparently had rallied, but at eleven o'clock came the hemorrhage and an hour and a quarter later, he died. Mrs. Byrns, two

CHINA GETTING READY FOR WAR

Conflict With Japan Is Regarded as Almost Inevitable

BY MORRIS J. HARRIS

Shanghai, June 4 (AP)—Ancient China is preparing for war with Japan—and she has a modern army to back her if war comes.

Japan's continued military penetration in North China, coupled with the wholesale smuggling in the area, will—Chinese themselves assert—force the central government at last, to defend itself.

China, they said, can expect no help from other powers or from the League of Nations.

But Nanking, foreign observers believe, will not force a showdown unless Japan tries to extend active authority beyond the limits of Hopei and Chahar provinces. If Japan attempts, however, to go south of the Yellow river China is expected to oppose Japan to the fullest.

Are Well Equipped

Generalisssimo Chiang Kai-Shek, semi-dictator of the national government, now has half a million loyal, well-trained, well-equipped troops. In case of an emergency he can also count upon another quarter million from the provinces, provided the regional war lords support him.

These men are equipped with light trench mortars, rifles, hand grenades, heavy and light machine guns—all made in Chinese arsenals after European and Japanese models.

Chiang's army also has eight batteries of 150-millimeter heavy artillery which is said to equal in range, mobility and destructive effect any movable ordnance in Europe and the United States. The best of the generalissimo's artillery consists of 75-millimeter field pieces, mountain guns and also heavier artillery of various foreign makes. In addition, there are 24 modern British tanks, some of which are amphibian, and a score of light anti-tank guns.

300 Modern Planes

But it is upon its rapidly increasing air force that China would depend for a great part of its defense.

China has a total of 300 modern pursuit, observation and bombing planes, 75 per cent of which are of American make. Within another six months Chiang will have 30 additional fast, long range American bombers with a speed of 200 miles an hour and a cruising range of 2,000 miles—capable of bombing the great industrial centers of Japan.

Manning the country's airplanes are nearly 400 American trained pilots, machine gunners and observers.

For defense of the nation's most important cities vulnerable to air attack China possesses less than 50 reasonably effective anti-aircraft guns. To remedy this situation Nanking's troops are being trained in the adaptation of heavy machine guns for anti-aircraft use.

CONSIDER ERA SETUP REVISION

Counties May Be Given Greater Control Over Relief

Lansing, Mich., June 4 (AP)—The state emergency relief commission, at the suggestion of Governor Fitzgerald, today considered a program designed to return to counties greater control over the expenditure of relief funds.

Governor Fitzgerald met with the three members of the commission at noon and asked that a cooperative plan between counties and the state for administration of the funds be adopted. He also recommended that the commission's employes be reduced and administrative costs cut.

William J. Norton, commission chairman, promised his commission would evolve a program for submission to the governor. The commission adjourned without reaching a definite program but will meet again Friday or Saturday.

Commissioners Commended

"The commission is receptive to the idea of revising its administrative organization to create a greater degree of local participation in administration of relief, maintaing at the same time thorough states supervision," Dr. William Haber, state emergency relief director, announced at the close of today's session.

Governor Fitzgerald explained his suggestions for revision of the administration were not intended to be critical. The meeting opened with commendation from the governor for the work of commission members.

"We have dismissed 3,300 employes since the time of the peak ERA case load", Dr. Haber told Governor Fitzgerald. "We dropped 160 last month and 32 last week."

Norton explained the commission has learned a certain number of employes are necessary to "keep control" of relief cases. Dr. Haber said the administration now has 1,980 employes, 970 of whom are in Wayne county.

FARLEY FLAILS CRITICS OF FDR

Predicts Reelection of President, Points to Recovery

Springfield, Mass., June 4 (AP)—Terming the Republican campaign "hopeless," Postmaster General James A. Farley tonight declared that "success and business" recovery have accompanied the present administration and predicted the re-election of President Roosevelt by an impressive majority.

Current criticisms of the Roosevelt regime were summarized by Farley as "part of the campaign wildness of a party that is devoid of a legitimate issue, and must beat the bushes for a candidate while it resorts to generalities and fables for arguments."

The postmaster general, addressing the Massachusetts Democratic state committee's pre-primary convention, cited statistics, quoted newspaper articles, and revived what he called the accomplishments of the last four years in answer to arguments by critics of the administration.

Conditions Improving

Almost at the outset of his address, which was broadcast over an NBC nationwide hookup, Farley said:

"President Roosevelt will be re elected by a majority so impressive that nobody in this counttry can have any doubt as to the faith of our people in the sincerity and ability of the Democratic administration to direct our affairs so that the old Democatic ideal of the greatest good for the greastest number shall be realized."

Farley, who is also chairman of the Democratic national committee, described present conditions as "immeasurably better" than they were four years ago.

"They are not perfect, by any means," he said, "but industrial and commissional enterprises, great and small, are making money and the total of popular well-doing is constantly improving.

"We would be much farther on our way if it had not been for the incessant clamor of our political foes, who have fought every step of our progress. Their constant effort is to replace the impulse of faith and hope, Engendered by the revial of business activity, with the responsibility of fear."

"That," he added, "is what has delayed complete recovery."

Continuing, he said:

"We have laws that make it a crime to circulate reports that a bank is unsound. How much

Boy Actor's Aunt To Retain Custody

Los Angeles, June 4. (AP)—Attorneys for principals in the Freddie Bartholomew custody controversy agreed tonight upon an arrangement whereby his aunt will continue to have his custody and his earnings will be shared by his parents.

At the conclusion of a conference of several hours at which counsel for the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Bartholomew, and the aunt, Miss Myllicent Bartholomew, were present, Isaac Pacht, attorney for the parents, said the general terms of the agreement had been reached.

It will be reduced to writing tomorrow, he said, and submitted to the principals for their acceptance. If this is given, the proposal will be presented to Superior Judge Harry Archbald on June 8 for his approval.

QUICK ACTION TAKEN AFTER BYRNS' DEATH

MAJORITY LEADER IS PROMOTED BY COLLEAGUES

BY FRANK B. HARPER (Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, June 4. (AP)—In an unprecedented three-minute ceremony the house today acclaimed William Brockman Bankhead of Alabama as its new speaker, succeeding Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee, who died just eleven hours earlier.

Never before, since American congresses began in 1789, had house members awakened to the news of a speaker's passing while congress was in session. They did this morning after the bushy-browed Tennessee Democrat had died suddenly at 12:15 a. m. of a cerebral hemorrhage.

It was an unusual situation. The majority leaders quickly determined upon an unusual means of meeting it.

No Caucus Held

Bowed over and red-eyed from a sleepless half-night at the deathbedside of his friend the speaker, Bankhead, who was the majority floor leader, with shaking hand fumbled the key in his office door shortly after nine a. m. He called the other party chieftains—Chairman O'Connor of New York of the rules committee, who may act as floor leader for the remainder of the session, and other Democratic leaders—to meet with him at 10 o'clock.

The house had been called by Speaker Byrns to meet at eleven with a view to disposing of the substitute Guffey coal control bill.

While Bankhead sat listening at the leaders conference he himself had called the other 15 present quickly decided the party's course. It was to elevate their floor leader to the highest post the house has to offer—without the usual preliminaries of a secret party nominating caucus or other delay.

The house parliamentarians had less than half an hour in which to draft the necessary resolutions. But when South Trimble, house clerk, called the silent house to order at eleven, they were ready.

Trimble, the only person empowered under the circumstances to convene the house, formally announced Byrns death to the members standing with bowed heads—many unashamedly wiping moist eyes—and indicated a motion to elect a speaker was in order.

O'Connor submitted the 50-word resolution naming Bankhead. It was read, Trimble put the question on its adoption, and it was approved by an unanimous Democratic voice vote. The Republicans had no part in the proceeding but sat respectfully silent.

A preliminary roll-call had been planned to assemble the membership, but there was such a full attendance that even this formality was dispensed with.

Sabath Gives Oath

Thus another of the Alabama Bankhead political dynasty was named to one of the nation's highest offices with dramatic suddenness.

Bankhead, with head lowered, was escorted down the center aisle by O'Connor, Republican Leader Snell of New York, and Representative Taylor (D-Colo.), as the house stood again. A scattering of applause was quickly hushed by members with sibilant whispers of "No, no," and their southern colleague who "came back" this year after a session's absence through illness, took the oath of office administered by the dean of the house, Representative Sabath (D-Ill.).

A prayer by the Rev. Allen A. Stockdale, formerly of the First Congressional church here, was prefaced by a reading of Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar." Then followed adoption of a resolution authorizing the house to recess any time during the rest of the session, and a choking speech by Byrns' closest house companion, Representative McReynolds (D-Tenn.).

McReynolds offered the house's resolution of sorrow. Then came appointment of the funeral arrangement committee, and the 18-minute sesson under the fourth speaker in fewer than four years was over.

Speaker Bankhead was pulled away from handshaking colleagues and rushed to his office for an hour or two of undisturbed rest. The Alabaman was kept out for months recently by heart trouble. After a brief rest, Bankhead called during the afternoon at the White House.

The tragic turn which removed the tall Tennessean from the speaker's rostrum brought to that the Democrats would later on.

Outline Quotations

He said it was probable that the Republican platform would be basically anti-new deal, and then outlined a series of quotations which he said were from public speeches by Governor Landon and from a letter of gratitude he said the governor had written Mr. Roosevelt.

The quotations, which bore various dates in 1934 and 1935, expressed confidence the president and WPA were "doing all in their power to get people to work;" spoke well of a water conservation program; and said:

"It would be good business in my opinion for Kansas to borrow every dollar it can get under the P. W. A."

Another said "We will take all the money we can get from the federal government."

The letter which Bachmann said the governor wrote President Roosevelt in 1934, was quoted as saying.

"This civil works program is one of the soundest, most conservtive policies of our administration and I cannot urge to strongly its continuance."

Bachmann said "it was inconceivable for the Reublican party to write a platform suitable to Republican and Jeffersonian Democrats when they nominate an avowed friend of the new deal to run upon it."

Legion, was termed "as black a liar as ever lived," by Harvey Davis, whom Dean accused in his testimony yesterday of having arranged the killing of Poole.

Dean, Davis told newsmen today, was a "gun crazy lunatic," and "a spy from general headquarters," of the secret order. "Dean tricked me into joining," Davis said, denying Dean's statement Davis was a "colonel" of the Black Legion. "I was only a corporal," Davis claimed.

Dean, in a police cell, announced he will plead guilty as "soon as they will let me."

At Jackson, four men, one a suspended penitentiary guard, were bound over for trial on charges of kidnaping and flogging Harley Smith, 46, of Norvell, for failure to attend legion meetings. They are Ray Ernest, the suspended guard; his two brothers, Glenn and Clarence Ernest, and Allen Basom.

After a citizens' committee mass meetting at Pontiac, Mich., named several city and Oakland county officials as Black Legion members, three circuit court judges granted the attorney general's petition for a grand jury inquiry there.

Davis admitted in his outburst at Dean today that he was present when Poole was slain, but declared Dean had not been authorized by any member of the Black Legion mob to kill Poole.

Byrns left a farm in northern Tennessee to earn a lawyer's education by labor in the tobacco fields and then to scale the heights of public office. In doing so, by his own testimony, he had a good time.

"Ive been here," he said, on his 66th birthday last July 20, "through peace, through war, through panic, through recovery through every conceivable condition. I wouldn't trade my experience for anything elce I could have done."

Byrns stood six feet and two inches in height. He was thin and rangy. His face was gaunt almost to the point of haggardness, but was lit by a pair of deeply-set cavernous, and often twinkling eyes, surmounted by a tangle of bushy white eyebrows.

The eyebrows which readily lent themselves to caricature were said to have resulted from a barber's joke. He asked for a clean shave, went to sleep in the chair, the barber shaved off his eyebrows and when they grew in again they had assumed the shagginess which they retained for the remainder of his life.

That was an aftermath of a variegated boyhood which saw Byrns living on a farm with his parents and his five brothers and sisters, attending a country school, and later moving to Nashville where the elder Byrns thought they would obtain a better schooling.

Interesting Career

From high school, Byrns went to Vanderbilt university. He earned his tuition by working in the tobacco fields. After two years of academic work he switched to the law school, from which he was graduated in 1890. He spent one more summer at farm work and then opened up a law office in Nashville.

He had no particular leaning toward politics, he has said, and it was with difficulty that his friends persuaded him to run for a seat in the state legislature. Four years after he started practice he took up the duties of a legislator. His rise was rapid. In his third term he became speaker of the state house of representatives.

Then he ran for the state senate, and won. A few years later came his only defeat at the polls. In 1902, he ran for attorney general of Davidson county, and was beaten. He went back to his law practice, but in 1908 he ran for a place in the national house and won after a memorable campaign against John Wesley Gaines, a redoubtable campaigner. He took his seat in the house in 1909.

There he slowly gained the seniority ladder as his constituents acquired the habit of returning him to office with such regularity that in later years no opponent thought it worth while even to try to unseat him.

The war found him in a responsible post as chairman of the appropriations subcommittee in charge of voting the vast expenditures which were needed to carry on the war. His conduct on the house floor in charge of these appropriations bills was said to have first brought him into prominence as a man of promise.

A stickler for keeping promises and gifted with a flair for talking out disagreements with other members, his rise in the party's ranks was thereafter rapid and his influence spread proportionately. The economic collapse and the election of President Roosevelt found him majority leader of the house with Rep. Rainey of Illinois as speaker. In that capacity he became a key administration figure.

When Rainey died in 1935, Byrns became a candidate for the speakership, and despite opposition received the endorsement of the Democratic caucus. He was elected speaker on Jan 3 ,1935, at the outset of the 74th congress.

greater a crime is it to give currency to reports that a government is unsound. Norma Shearer Is Model For Artist

Hollywood, June 4 (AP)—Norma Shearer, movie actress, whose weekly paycheck runs into four substantial figures, earned $10 today as a model for the artist, James Montgomery Flagg.

She posed as Juliet. When the sitting was complete, she said: "You always gave me ten dollars for posing. Do I get it this time?"

"You do," Flagg replied. As in the days long ago, when she was a commercial model, he handed her the bill.

DAY FREED OF LOEB MURDER

Jury Takes Just an Hour to Acquit Illinois Convict

BY EARL ALKROID
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Joliet, Ill., June 4 (AP)—Exactly one hour after a jury received the case of 21-year-old convict, James Day, charged with murdering "thrill killer," Richard Loeb, Day was free tonight—to go back to his cell and complete his prison term for larceny.

A jury of twelve men acquitted him of the penitentiary razor-slaying, itself a bloody sequel to the sensational kidnap murder of Bobby Franks in Chicago 12 years ago, after deliberating 53 minutes.

The jurors retired at 3:25 p. m. E. S. T. and their decision was announced at 4:25 p. m.

Ignoring the state demands for an added prison term, the jurors upheld Day's plea from the witness stand that he hacked the partner of Nathan Leopold to death in self defense after Loeb had "hounded" him for 14 months with indecent proposals.

Has Job in Sight

Smiling happily as Jury Foreman Joseph Schwab read the verdict, Day said:

"I sure am grateful to my lawyers, Harold Levy and Emmett Byrne. I've got a job in sight and hope that the parole board will show me consideration now."

His hope for release from the prison was strengthened by words of presiding Judge Edwin L. Wilson. The jurist said he would go before the parole board in Day's behalf if the prisoner is allowed a hearing.

Day, a native of Lynchburg, Va., but resident most of his life in Chicago with an aunt and uncle who financed his defense, would have been eligible for parole now—had not the bathroom slaying intervened—under his one to ten year term for robbery in Cook county.

The swift verdict in the trial, which attracted large crowds during its ten days, came on the second ballot, jurors disclosed. On the first they had lined up eleven to one for acquittal.

Though the state in its final arguments had not asked for the death penalty, the jury was qualified for it and Judge Wilson had included it in the five forms of verdict permissible in his instructions.

References to the Franks slaying were made in the final pleas of both prosecution and defense.

"By the laws of God and man, Dickie Loeb should have been killed years ago," defense counsel Levy declared.

"The ghost of Bobby Franks may hover over this courtroom if Day goes free," said Prosecutor James McKeown.

Day was escorted back to the old prison here, passing through a line of marchers participating in a centennial parade.

The slaying of Loeb on January 28 in his alleged "private bathroom" in Stateville prison produced penal and political repercussions.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

RISE OF THE MUZHIK

ONLY a century ago, the downtrodden Russian "muzhik," or peasant, was practically a serf, a slave to the nobility and grasping landowners. Freed of serfdom, then, he was kept in ignorance and poverty, and lived even a harder life because of his independence.

Then came the Red revolution in 1917, and the muzhik began to hope for real freedom and a happier life. But again he had to bear the brunt, this time under Communism. Under the rule of "collectivism," he had to pool his resources with those of his neighbors into vast community farms, and the greater part of his crops went to the central government. As a result, foreign observers in Russia believed that a Soviet war would cause internal revolution.

But recently Russia has begun to recognize the needs of the peasantry, to "sell itself" to the muzhik, and to build a vast second "line of defense" behind its standing army. The muzhik is rising in importance.

Russia has issued several stamps honoring the peasant. One is shown here.

NEW PREMIER HOPES TO END LABOR STRIFE

dent of the municipal council, called a meeting of city officials tomorrow to consider asking Paris police to see that the capital is kept supplied with food, and to prevent any hindrance of public services.

Employers told Premier Sarraut the strikes were "revolutionary." The outgoing group deposited an unenviable situation in the new government's lap.

Stores Are Closed

The occupation strikes closed big chain grocery stores, two sugar factories and a big brewery. Afternoon newspapers papers failed to appear. These were the last critical developments.

The price of wheat rose, and garbage collectors threatened to strike. Department stores were expected to close tomorrow.

The "popular front" premier was called to power two hours after Sarraut and his coalition cabinet had resigned. Blum went to the Elysee Palace, unsmiling as he stepped from a presidential automobile. Dressed well as usual, a new light grey hat with its characteristic broad brim, and light grey spats.

His chamber of deputies appearance Saturday will be preceded by a council of ministers at Lebrun's palace. A vote of confidence will be asked later in the chamber.

Housewives jammed market places in some quarters gathering supplies. Union news dealers announced they were closing all stands tomorrow and demanding higher percentage in sales.

The Paris Newspaper Publishers association decided to suspend publication of all papers until midnight tomorrow because of inability to distribute.

Ground Is Leveled At New Escanaba City Market Site

Grading and graveling is now in progress on the grounds of the new Escanaba municipal market, and the structure will be ready for use when the farm produce season opens in two or three weeks.

The new market shelter, located on First avenue north between Eighth and Ninth, replaces the former market site on North Ninth near Ludington. The building will provide shelter and parking space for farmers and truckers who bring in their goods, and also for the shoppers. Last year the market opened the last Saturday in June, continued through to Thanksgiving time, and was used by about 50 growers. Constructed as a WPA project, the market place is scheduled eventually to have concrete pavement, but the gravel surfacing will be used for this year.

Carl E. Anderson is the market-master.

WELLS IS DELEGATE

Menominee — Menominee will have a fully empowered delegate at the Republican national convention which meets next Tuesday in Cleveland, Ohio, to name candidates for president and vice president on the Republican ticket.

William Bonifas of Escanaba was named by the Michigan Republican convention as a delegate and A. C. Wells of Menominee named as alternate. Today Mr. Bonifas, who has been ill, notified Mr. Wells that he would be unable to go to Cleveland, and this fact automatically places Mr. Wells in the position of delegate with full voting power. He will leave Sunday night for Cleveland.

BARRETT BACKS COUNTY BOARD

Says Supervisors Were Right in Demanding Resignations

Newberry, Mich., June 4.—J. L. Barrett, former member of the Luce county road commission, whose resignation was accepted by the board of supervisors last week gave a statement to the Press representative on Thursday.

"I believe that the supervisors were right in asking for our resignations," Mr. Barrett said. "If they will follow it up with an investigation of all of the affairs of the department many things will be cleared up which will be for the good of the whole county. As far as I was concerned, I served the county as well as I was able to under the circumstances and bear no ill will towards anyone.

"Difficulties arose when the county engineer neglected to take the members of the commission into his confidence on many matters. He made contracts and bargains without consulting all of the members of the commission, made them between meetings, and the results were no good. We worked at cross-purposes and had many misunderstandings. For instance gravel contracts were given, the contract for the maintenance of M-135 south of Helmer was let without bringing up the matters at a meeting. The purchase of a heavy truck was made over my protest. The truck is too heavy to be used on county roads.

"I would like to see the money spent wisely. We should have much better roads than we now have, and I can see no reason why we cannot if the wisest use of the highway money can be obtained."

Mr. Barrett is a well known lumber man here and has served several years as highway commissioner, part of the time as chairman of that body.

Brown To Deliver School Address

"The Change of the Shift" is the title of the address which will be delivered here on Friday night when John W. Brown of Detroit will talk to the members of the graduating class from the Newberry high school. Mr. Brown is a graduate of the local schools, leaving here to attend the Northern State Teachers' college after his graduation in 1921. Later he took two degrees, B.S. and M.A. at the University of Michigan and is now employed as sales analyist for the Standard Oil company, located in Detroit. He is sure to have something of interest to say.

The program:

Processional, Barbara Fisher.

Invocation, Rev. R. A. Garrison.

Songs, High School Mixed Glee Club.

(a) When Allen-a-Dale Went A-Hunting, DePearsall.

(b) German Folk Song, harmonized by Brahms.

Address, The Change of the Shift, John W. Brown.

Presentation of Diplomas, Herman Kunert.

CLASS NIGHT

The Class Night program held on Tuesday was attended by a large audience. Miss Gertrude Wiita delivered the salutatory after which the senior class marched in between rows of singing juniors and under arches of twined vines and flowers. A clever scene in which the history of the class was recalled by Queen Memory, personified by Elizabeth Ward, with Alvin Victorson as Father Time, Albin Erickson, class president, Lloyd Pardee as the herald and the little pages for Queen Memory played by Masters David Connolly and Frederick Pingatore. Dances were done by Lucille Haas, Florence Quinlan, Helen Beaudin, Monna Burns, Kaarina Lyyski, Margaret Cook, Beatrice Campbell and Helen Jacobson. Gertrude Wiita represented "a senior," Esther Ballak was the spirit of the school.

The seven guides of education were played by Arthur Fahler for "Health," Lucille Haas for "Home," Elton Turk for "Learning," Hugh Orphan for "Citizenship," Leona Berry for "Leisure," Ruth Walker for "Character," Sterling Stewart for "Vacation." A ballet dance was done by Tellervo Honkonen.

The second part of the program was unusually clever and represented a broadcasting program with George Hunter as the announcer. In part three Helen Jacobson appeared as the "Spirit of Education" and the last will and testament was given. The seniors sang the farewell song and Elton Turk delivered the valedictory.

Farm Prices Above Average In Michigan

Washington.—Michigan farmers received prices varying from twenty cents to as much as 60 dollars higher than the average for farmers throughout the country for the sale of live stock during the period of April 15 to May 15, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the Department of Agriculture.

Whereas the average farmer in the United States received only $100.20 per head for the sale of horses, Michigan farmers got $160 per head. The sale of milk cows averaged $53 per head, but in Michigan brought $62, or $9 per head higher. Veal calves sold for $8.80 per 100 pounds in Michigan markets, or $1.37 more than the average price of $7.43.

Smoking Out The Candidates

In this article, Norman Thomas, Socialist nominee for president, answers the same ten questions which were answered by Republican candidates in Frazier Hunt's series, "Smoking Out the Candidates".

BY WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright 1936, NEA Service, Inc.)

Norman Thomas is a candidate who doesn't expect to be elected—this time. He'll tell you so quite frankly.

But don't get the idea that Thomas isn't in earnest about his candidacy. He is. He is more interested, however, in principles that he believes must triumph eventually, than he is in making deals and maneuvers that might increase his vote this fall.

THORNTON

The earnestness of this gray-haired man of 52 is clear as he stretches long legs from a sofa in his hotel room opposite the Cleveland auditorium where the Socialist Party convention has just nominated him to run a third time for the presidency.

He is tired, having spent most of the past year in trying to help southern share-cropper farmers to organize in the face of bitter local opposition. And now, for almost a week, he has been weathering a revolt and minor split in the ranks of his own party.

But his native energy rises above weariness, and he says he is happy to answer the list of 10 pertinent questions being put to major candidates by NEA Service and the Press.

Wife Constantly at Side

Mrs. Thomas, who accompanies the ex-Presbyterian minister on all his speaking tours and campaigns, acting as a personal secretary, sits quietly in the room as Thomas studies the questions. She is knitting, this wife of an agitator for peaceful revolution, but there is nothing about her that suggests the women of the French terror who knitted with gleaming eyes as the heads rolled. It is only by contrast that the thought comes at all.

Mrs. Thomas is a small, gentle and quiet woman, mother of five children. It is for a garment for a small grandson that the yarn is being wound on her expert fingers. She rises from time to time to handle telephone calls for her husband.

Basic Order Opposed

"I'll be glad to answer those questions," says Thomas. "Of course they are all based on the existing order of capitalism, in which I don't believe. But if a Socialist government were to be elected on November 3, that wouldn't mean Socialism on November 4. There would have to be a period of transition even then, of cleaning up the problems piled up by decaying capitalism.

"Since I am running for the presidency, it is only fair that I answer these questions as to immediate measures that would be taken on the matters covered by the questions."

And so, immediately and without a hem or a haw, Thomas dictated his answers.

No Compromise at Polls

"Socialists this year will be expected to vote the Socialist ticket," Thomas made clear. "There will be no trucking with plans like voting for Roosevelt to help defeat a reactionary Republican, or trying to support a hastily-contrived farmer-labor party with neither farmers nor labor behind it. No 'united front' with Communists or others.

"The plan of supporting a 'liberal' regime to keep the reactionaries out has been exploded by experience. I voted for Wilson in 1916 because 'he kept us out of war.' What did we get? War. The German Social Democrats voted for Hindenburg to defeat reaction. What did they get? Hindenburg and Hitler, and then just Hitler.

Snub for Communists

"We have rejected a united political front with the Communists. If they should decide to support our ticket rather than have one of their own, of course we can't help that. But I want to make it clear right now that we haven't asked, won't ask and don't want their support, and that they will have no part in directing our campaign."

Thomas regards a farmer-labor or a united labor party as a very distinct possibility for 1940, but "not if they try to start organizing it in 1940. It's got to be well started by 1938." It is more than likely that the Socialists would support a genuine party of this kind, Thomas indicated.

Twenty years of political and social campaigning are behind the mind which dictates answers to the ten questions almost faster than the reporter can write them down. A tall, broad-shouldered figure rises as the last answer is written. He has to go back to the closing session of the party convention.

Mrs. Thomas, the slight, gray, gentle woman who takes down many of his speeches on a portable typewriter on her knees in the small coupe while Thomas drives and dictates, is at the candidate's side as he walks across the street with long strides toward the convention hall.

Birling As a Sport

ANNOUNCEMENT that a log rolling exhibition will be held at the Ludington Park beach next Sunday will cause some of the younger generation to wonder about the origin of this ancient sport.

Before the advent of the railroads, the river drive was the means of transporting logs to the sawmills. The trees were cut during the winter and the logs hauled by horses to the river banks, where they were piled high to await the spring break-up.

The spring log drive was always an interesting event in this northern lumbering region. The logs were rolled down the banks of the streams and then the drive was on. In the drama of the log drive the leading roles were played by those colorful woodsmen, known as the "river rats," whose responsibility it was to keep the logs constantly moving downstream and to prevent jams. When jams did occur, however, the river rats would hop nimbly from log to log to locate the key-log and pry it loose. With the key-log attended to, the jam would break and the millions of logs would continue to float on their way to the sawmills, usually located near the mouths of the streams.

During their spare time or on holiday occasions, the river rats, who became exceptionally adept in handling themselves on the logs, would engage in birling contests. Two men, each wearing caulked-boots, would get on the ends of a pine log and commence to propel it with their feet, the objective being to make the other fall off.

Gradually the sport grew until tournaments were held to determine the champion log rollar of the state and the world. Many of the old-time log rollers have passed on, but some of their sons, most of whom have never worked on a log drive, however, have taken up the sport and are doing their bit to perpetuate it as one distinctive of the lumbering country. While log rolling has declined into one of the minor sports, it still serves a useful purpose in this northern resort region in giving tourists a reminder of those hectic days when "Pine Was King."

Dollars in the Ditch

CITIZENS of an Upper Peninsula city propose to spend several thousand dollars for an electric sign to be placed near a trunk line highway, where it will call attention to local tourist and resorting features.

From a business standpoint such an outlay can hardly be considered a good investment. The sign may divert into the community some travelers bound for other points, but they will be comparatively few. The point is that the vacationing public can best be influenced at its starting place to head this way. Money sunk in such secondary means of publicity as the above is largely wasted.

The locality fortunate enough to have available several thousand dollars for tourist publicity can do no better than to invest the sum in metropolitan newspaper and magazine display space, where millions in the great centers will unfailingly get the message. There is no substitute for this kind of advertising, which pays dividends over and over to the buyer. It is safe to say that funds thus employed instead of being frittered away in expensive signs, billboards and booklets, will earn ten times the net cash results and revenues.

This district needs more advertising in the great central reservoirs which constitute its best source of tourist supply. Too much money is being thrown away on booklets sent to inquirers obtained through keyed newspapers ads, or who are interested in getting a costly tourist publication for the price of a postcard. The funds allocated to the larger papers and the magazines, limited as they are, really constitute the district's advertising ace.

That advertising dollar counts best which broadcasts the story through the medium of newsprint and picture circulating widely in the right territory. The net returns from signs, booklets and so on and limited and feeble in comparison.

Stamp Sales Looking Up

FIGURES released by the U. S. Postoffice Department show that postal receipts in Michigan for the first four months of the present calendar year were $7,355,000, as compared with $6,741,000 for the same period a year ago, representing a gain of more than nine per cent.

The increase in Michigan is somewhat greater than the average for the entire country, which is approximately seven per cent. The gains are not confined to the industrial and metropolitan areas. Over 500 fourth-class postoffices have been advanced to the Presidential grade this year as a result of increased postal receipts which placed them within the latter category.

The 40-hour week law for postal employes has largely solved what was a very acute problem regarding substitute employes, according to the department. Many waiting substitutes have obtained regular jobs, and regular positions have been found for many others who were unemployed.

The present domestic air-mail system now covers authorized routes totaling 29,000 miles and scheduled trips totaling 40,000,000 miles annually. Over 200 American cities have direct air-mail service, and the system serves 46 states directly and the remaining two indirectly.

The cost of the air-mail service will be approximately $12,000,000 this year, and it is expected that all records for the volume of mail transported by air, passengers carried, passenger-miles flown, and pounds of air express carried will be again bettered. The new trans-Pacific airline has reduced the time consumed in transporting mail from the United States to the Far East from 18 days to five and one-half days. It is expected that the first experimental flights between the United States and Europe will be conducted this summer.

The Ornate Out-of-Doors

THIS is the time of year when men and women don their old clothes, brighten up and replenish their tackle, and mount the old bus for some trout stream or bay shore stretch in the county where they go fishing. They get wet and cold and muddy, and they have a bully time. Occasionally they catch fish, but perhaps you've noticed that this isn't all there is to fishing.

Getting out into the open where every glance is an eyeful of nature is by no means the lesser part of a fishing excursion. There is a deep joy in outdoor communion that is inseparate from the art of angling. Fishing is conductive to health, good nature, cleanliness of mind and long life. Delta county is blessed with many beautiful fishing places. Our fishermen are alive to this fact and they make the most of it.

The fishing enthusiast is almost invariably a clean cut, decent, progressive citizen. Somehow fishing doesn't appeal to the other kind of people. We have never known a crook who really loved to fish, and if there is such a man, he is surely exceptional. If this city and county have a degree of morality that is absent in less favored sections, our abundance of fishing facilities is one factor to which due credit should be given.

Tree Planter No. 1

SEEKING to rectify the ruthless destruction of its forests in past years, Uncle Sam is rapidly becoming the foremost tree planter in the world. That is exceptionally good news when one considers that this country is practically new at the game.

In 1935, for instance, the Forest Service's own planting in national forests approximately 225,000,000 acres—more than were planted in 1934 by all agencies, federal, state and private. This year's plantings will increase the total more than 10 per cent. There are more than 162,000,000 acres of national forests alone in the United States, and the estimated total forest acreage is more than 500,000,000 acres.

The countries with the biggest forest reserves now include Russia, Brazil, Canada and the United States. Europe has long practiced replanting. It is gratifying to note that at last America is becoming conservation conscious.

RELIEF—PLAYING WITH FIRE
(Christian Science Monitor)

APPARENTLY there is to be no genuine official effort to reach basic decisions on the problem of unemployment relief in the United States before November. The $1,500,000,000 work relief bill is to be pushed through Congress this week. With the Roosevelt Administration already knee deep in the election's turbulent stream, the President manifestly does not want to change horses by trying a new relief policy. Yet there must be a reassessment of aims and methods. And the election itself will cause unofficial study of the problem to be made by many a conscientious voter.

There is every indication that relief will be one of the major issues of the campaign unless the Republican Party blunders. Mr. Hoover, that most experienced of relief administrators, has made some of his most effective attacks on the New Deal in his speeches on the subject. One of the few examples of vigorous opposition in Congress has been Senator Vandenberg's fight for a change in relief methods. Indeed some of the vigor of the Republican attack on relief arises from the fact that it is one subject on which most of the Republicans are in agreement and already prepared to offer a definite alternative program.

It is clear even now that the Cleveland platform will demand decentralization of relief. It may even be more specific and propose federal grants in aid to be administered by local agencies, "by non-political local agencies, responsive to community needs and familiar with community problems." This is the wording of a draft just put out by a committee representing five Republican organizations in New York.

There is little question that some such plan would win much popular support. There is a feeling that the present relief system is wasteful and political. Disclosures like those made by Senator Holt of West Virginia, the failure of relief rolls to decline in anything like the proportion of business improvement, and some common experience with the operation of the system all tend to make this feeling almost a conviction. Anyone who has noticed how often the familiar sign along the road, "Men at Work," is misleading, can be easily persuaded that the present relief system is not a complete success.

Among even the sympathetically inclined there is a growing belief that made work is often so little respected by many workers that it is as harmful to morale as a straight dole. Even those who know what an unusually capable administrator Harry Hopkins has made, question whether such extensive centralization as federal administration entails can be free of politics and waste. Continued laxity in handling unemployment relief was largely responsible for the overturn of the Labor Government in Great Britain in 1931. Impatience with the present system will not long be kept in bounds in America.

The alacrity with which federal money is accepted is no measure of the popularity of the relief system. Among farmers, particularly, waste is regarded as little short of criminal. And among some of the farmers upon whom the Democratic Party is counting for new political support the feeling against relief abuses may be strong enough to outweigh gratitude for farm aid. Indeed, impatience with the system is so strong today in many areas of popular thought that on this issue the Administration is faced with something like the discontent and desire for change which brought it into office. The Republicans will not have to prove that their proposals for handling relief are sound and workable. They can win many a vote by merely offering something different in the way of relief policy.

Indeed, the temptation is great for both parties to make relief a political question rather than to go to the trouble of finding out what plan will meet the need which manifestly is still present and meet it with the greatest benefit to those requiring relief and the least cost to the country both in politics and money. Proposals for a thoroughgoing reappraisal of relief purposes and methods have so far received less attention from either party than they deserve. For the Administration such an investigation might offer a graceful and less politically damaging way of revising policy than would a flat submission to opposition demands. For the Republicans the soundest relief policy will ultimately prove the most safe policy politically. Indeed, playing with relief is playing with fire. And aside from the parties, the welfare of the country might be considered.

It is probably true that professors have lost in public esteem during recent years. Why is this the case? One reason is that a number of them have been placed in administrative positions involving the expenditure of vast sums of money, despite the fact that they had no previous experience fitting them for the positions.

A professor of law, political science, or economics may, by virtue of his training, his scientific spirit, his knowledge of facts, and his ability to see both sides of a question, be well qualified for service on a governmental commission, such as the Securities and Exchange Commission the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the like. But he may be totally unqualified for the management of large enterprises. It would seem that it is the fault of the Administration, rather than of the professors, that men of little experience were entrusted with tasks for which they had neither the ability nor the training.

A second reason is that the Administration, in so far as it has depended on the professors for advice, has in many instances selected the wrong advisers. It stances selected the wrong advisers. It has selected men who are not representative of the profession, and thereby has tended to place the entire profession in disrepute.

Many illustrations of this point could be given, did space permit. Limiting ourselves to the choice of economists, the profession stands firmly for "a sound currency to be preserved at all hazards." As a whole the profession has no sympathy with currency tinkering, and the economists that the President chose for his advisers on money did not voice the views of the profession. It would be difficult, indeed, to find an economist who approves of the silver policy of the Administration. Economists also favor a balanced budget, and not a program of almost unlimited spending.

Perhaps the best illustration, however, is the agricultural policy of the Administration. Economics is sometimes defined as the science of wealth, but whatever the definition he is a poor economist who advocates a policy of scarcity rather than one of abundance. The agricultural policy of the Administration, though called a policy of adjustment, is actually one of scarcity; and the Administration has been able to find a few professors willing to lend support to this policy, and even to assist in putting it into effect.

A policy of scarcity may increase the income of the farmers, but it reduces the national wealth, and therefore the income of the consumers. A sounder agricultural policy would be to encourage measures calculated to reduce costs of production, and thus prices; and to find new markets and new uses for agricultural products, rather than raise their prices through curtailment of supply and processing taxes.

In fact, the trouble with the AAA is that it is a scheme of planning in the interest of producers; and this is always likely to result in restriction of output and in higher prices. If planning is to succeed, it must be conducted for the benefit, not of only one section of the population, even a section as large as the farming population, but of the whole community, that is of the consumers. But in the AAA, and also the NRA, the consumers were almost ignored.

"A SEARCH IN SECRET EGYPT," by Paul Brunton; (Dutton).

A CERTAIN New York publisher has been issuing books touching the occult in various ways, and lots of them. Candor demands acknowledgement that most of them have little general interest—but Paul Brunton's "A Search in Secret Egypt" does have general interest.

The three parts of the book which especially qualify have to do with Mr. Brunton's interview with the spiritual head of Islam, Sheikh el Maraghi, grand rector of El Azhar Mosque-University at Cairo; with Tahre Bey's explanation of Islam to the rest of the world. Obviously, the spokesman is one who has an interest in presenting Islam in its best light; nevertheless, he does do a good deal to dispel the common idea that Islam is a collection of fanatics presenting the points of spears toward the remaining world. The grand rector's explanation is calm, lucid, intelligent.

Tahre Bey is (if Brunton's estimate is of value) a wonderworker convinced that his ability to be punctured by swords, walk on fire and whatnot comes from extensive studies of ancient and modern mysteries. He is an adept at self-hypnosis, using the mechanical means extensively—pressure on nerve centers, and swallowing his own tongue being part of the proceeding. Once in a trance, he can be buried for long periods without harm (unless voracious ants get at him!), and can do more wonders than that.

And although this department fails to understand why Mr. Brunton wanted to be able to handle venomous snakes as the Orientals do, it is entertaining at least to know how simply they can be put to sleep. Provided you have the accredited magic talisman, of course, and know the proper incantations. These last always, incidentally, contain passages from the Koran.

There is a good deal more than this in the book; it is only fair to add that some of it, dealing with the author's determined investigation of old temples and whatnot, is a bit on the dull side.

20 Years Ago

A marriage license was issued yesterday to Alderie Terrien and Dorina Laforest, both of Escanaba township.

More than seven thousand persons attended the two-day pageant held at Ludington park Saturday and Sunday. The spectacle was directed by Miss Marie Snyder, physical director of the schools; Miss Frances B. Ryan, supervisor of music, and Superintendent of Schools F. E. King.

The body of Harry Malesky, who was drowned on April 24 with Stanley Brown when the ferry boat in which they were crossing the Escanaba river capsized, was found Sunday, two miles above the bridge on the Gladstone road.

A daughter was born Monday to Rev. and Mrs. P. H. Ferris of Petoskey, former residents of Escanaba.

Word has been received here of the death at Watertown, Wis., of James M. Malloy, formerly an official of the Escanaba Pulp and Paper Company.

Miss Agnes Beauchamp and Archie Campbell were united in marriage at St. Joseph's church Monday morning.

Official notice was received yesterday by Postmaster John O'Meara of the promotion of the Escanaba postoffice on July 1 from second class to a first class office.

Mrs. D. J. Murphy and Miss Catherine Doherty have gone to Milwaukee to spend a few days with friends.

THE LITTLE JOURNEYS

The journeys we have made together—
Why, I remember even the weather,
The picnic place beneath a tree,
The hilltop where we glimpsed the sea,
The farmhouse where we bought the milk,
The dandelions sowing silk,
The cup beside the cooling spring—
Why, I remember ev'rything!

The journeys that we used to wander—
As long as it was over yonder
It little mattered where we trod,
As long as it was near to God
And far from men. So hand-in-hand
We traveled through a daisied land,
A little while we made it ours,
Forevermore to pluck its flow'rs.

The journeys through the fragrant clover—
These darker days I live them over,
The little things I heard you say
Remembered as of yesterday,
And sometimes I imagine you
Are standing on that hilltop, too,
Or walking with me, like as not,
A path that neither has forgot.

New York Column

BY JACK STINNETT

NEW YORK—We have been down to the sea again . . . but just to watch the Exchange slip from its New Jersey pier into the Hudson, round Miss Liberty and disappear down the narrows toward the open sea. . . destination unknown.

In these days of Normandies and Queen Marys, the good ship Exchange looks about the size of a tug. A couple of weeks from now, with fair winds and good fortune, she'll be making Casa Blanca on the northwest coast of Africa and after that . . . who knows? . . . for she's a bit of a tramp freighter . . . and follows wherever the cargoes call.

Aboard her is Emma-Lindsay Squier . . . whose call is not cargoes . . . but adventure.

Miss Squier lives down in Greenwich Village when the wanderlust is not on her . . . and divides her time between writing and pottering in a gay little private garden whose walls muffle the shrill cries of the Italian children who make Perry street their playground.

EMMA-LINDSAY SQUIER, in appearance, is quite frail with eyes as blue as a desert sky and a most conventional manner. But don't let that deceive you.

For days on end, she has ridden a burro up and down the jagged Andes. Hour after hour, she has hacked her way through the solid walls of grass in the Yucatan for a sight of the lost cities of the Mayas now inhabited only by lizards and snakes. For fearful minutes, she has splashed about in the alligator-infested waters of Guatemala in an effort to outgeneral a vast army of garrapatas, a particularly vicious little woodtick.

She spent weeks helping her husband, John Bransby, drag a camera through the interior of Mexico to come out with a feature-length travel film which she has never seen.

It was during this journey in the wilderness that they were attacked by a band of drunken Mexican brigands. Miss Squier noticed that one of them carried a guitar. She borrowed it and soon both attackers and attacked were crooning the timeless folk-songs of old Mexico. The bandits rode off in the dawning, ignoring the loot which had attracted them to the little caravan.

MISS SQUIER was born in Marion, Ind., but soon her family moved to a ranch which was not far from Seattle, Wash., though it might well have been, for the distance between was almost impassable.

To the ranch often came remnants of once-powerful Indian tribes, and to the child, Emma-Lindsay, they told legends of the tribes which had been told to them in their childhood. As she grew older, she felt the need to pass them along and started writing.

She's been writing ever since. Her latest book, "Gringa," told of Mexico. And there was a short story, "Glorious Buccaneer," which recounted a romantic legend of the Pacific coast in the eighteenth century. It is from this latter that they made the picture, "Lancing Pirate."

Miss Squier couldn't wait to see it, for the little Exchange had its sailing orders . . . to proceed to the coast of Africa . . . and there are things on the coast of Africa Miss Squier must learn about . . . among them, she told us, what the lives of the women who live in harems are like.

Coffee is not native to South America. It is supposed to have been discovered in Abyssinia.

News Behind The News

BY PAUL MALLON

Paul Mallon

Washington, June 4.—President Roosevelt would not chide a Republican for the world. It was not he who made public his letter urging congress to start with Sen. Vandenberg's beet sugar followers in cutting down large farm benefit payments. It was those two Democratic partisans, Senator O'Mahoney and Representative Jones, to whom the letter was addressed. They gave it out.

A president, of course, never indulges in political by-play, especially where legislation is involved. He probably did not even read the papers closely enough to know that Senator Vandenberg was being sounded out by the Landon forces for their vice-presidential nomination or that Mr. Vandenberg has been the leading campaigner for a reduction of benefit payments to large corporate farmers.

Congressmen sometimes consider such things, however. Also, occasionally they forget.

Perhaps this is the reason why the White House privately sent an unwritten postscript to Messrs. O'Mahoney and Jones telling them that Mr. Roosevelt would not care how much publicity his letter received. To make doubly sure, it seems that the White House also tipped newsmen that the letter could be obtained from the two addressees, although the White House itself would never, never give out such things.

—MOOD—

The only importance of the sly move to pull Senator Vandenberg's leg is the extent to which it reflects the inner campaign mood and adroitness of the top new dealer. It brought echoes of laughter in White House and congressional corridors and some of the following private comments:

(a) That Mr. Roosevelt could hardly have chosen a more effective way to make known his passive opposition to large farm benefit payments.

(b) That the President has lately appeared to be in a playful and highly confident spirit.

(c) That this is the sort of thing which the Republican innocents are going to be up against in the coming campaign.

—PEP POLL—

Republicans are heartening themselves with some straw polls, the results of which are being circulated privately within their organizations.

The latest is supposed to have been conducted by "an independent and non-partisan" source about two weeks ago. About 75,000 straw ballots are said to have been sent to voters throughout the country.

Up to May 18, the result from 13,539 returned ballots was tabulated as follows: Republicans 51.02 per cent, Democrats 46.42 per cent. The difference was taken up by the Socialist and other parties.

A second poll made among farmers only (said to be based on 22,088 personal calls) showed the following results in 30 states: Roosevelt 42.1 per cent, other Democrats 3.7 per cent; Republicans 46.7 per cent, Townsend 6.4 per cent, Socialists 1.1 per cent.

Few lawyers will consider such evidence convincing in view of the prejudice of the witness, but the Republicans believe it, and it has pepped them up considerably.

—TRADERS—

The Soviets are rapidly gaining a reputation inside the world of diplomacy as the hardest traders in the business. American diplomats who tried to negotiate settlement of the Czarist debts are now laughing at the British.

London had the mistaken notion that Moscow would be overjoyed to make a naval agreement with the British empire. Instead, the Soviets went to London prepared for horse trading. They wanted a defensive alliance for protection against Hitler. In order to get it they are hemming and hawing with the British over their naval needs. They will not enter any agreement with London unless granted the right to parity with Japan. They also want equality with Germany.

British surprise could not be greater if the Reds had asked for the crown jewels.

—ZIONCHECK—

The accepted explanation of Zioncheck is that he has been bundling himself up against the world with Zioncheck zippers for six months and more. Not even a congressman can stand that.

The Seattle congressman would probably have gone on indefinitely, however, if he had permitted the White House to remain outside the scope of his performance. It was the White House which furnished the inside courage for his apprehension.

This courage was handed directly via telephone to a local district commissioner and then on to the local police.

—BOONDOGGLES—

Republican Senator Metcalfe entertained the senate with "boondoggle examples", the best being these: $14,962 to pave the bed of Wigwam brook in New Jersey; $19,000 for a gymnasium in a New Mexico village with 134 inhabitants; $62,000 to repair a community center in Vermont, but the repairs could not be expected because community center had not yet been built.

—REMINDER—

Mussolini must have studied timing. He has now selected June 16 for a gigantic army demonstration. It just happens to be the day on which the League of Nations council meets to consider continuation of sanctions.

Just before the guillotine dropped, a French criminal was presented with his tax bill. He greeted it with a detached sneer.

A Yale professor says winking enables you to see things more distinctly—your mistake, for instance, if the pretty girl swings on you.

EQUAL RIGHTS AGAIN ARGUED

Women May Resort to Ballot; Campaign Issue Seen

By DAVID LAWRENCE
(Copyright 1936, Escanaba Daily Press)

Washington, June 4.—The women of America may shortly have to decide by their ballots whether they are to be treated hereafter as wards fho require special protection, or as the equals of men, entitled to the same civil rights in negotiating for their service and labor.

This issue arises out of the latest decision of the supreme court of the United States, which refused by a vote of 5 to 4 to uphold a New York state law discriminated against women, even though it was intended as a minimum wage law for their benefit.

Changed Court Decision

The rival candidates for the presidential nomination will probably be asked to state their positions on an amendment to the constitution which reads as follows:

"Men and women shall have equal rights throughout the United States and in every place subject to its jurisdiction."

If such an amendment had been in the constitution this week, the decision of the supreme court of the United States on the so-called minimum wage law would probably have been 9 to 0 in rejecting the New York law. As it was, an examination of the majority opinion of the supreme court shows that Justice Outler followed in many instances the language and the reasoning of a brief submitted to the supreme court on behalf of the National Woman's party, the National Association of Women Lawyers, the Bindery Women's Union, Local No. 66 of the international Brotherhood of Bookbinders, the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Women's League, the Business Women's Legislative Council of California and the Women's Equal Opportunity League of New York.

Law Called Unfair

In that brief, for instance, Burnita Shelton Matthews and Rebekah Scandrett Greathouse, appearing as counsel for the abovementioned organizations, asked the supreme court of the United States to declare the New York law unconstitutional and said:

"The effect of this law is to promote unfair competition between men and women workers and to drive women out of employment . . . .

"To take from women freedom to contract to work for wages for which men may work in practically every occupation in an entire state is to hold that the right to labor for pay is primarily the prerogative of the mail, and that women are wards or serfs who are only allowed to work for special wages under special supervision and subject to special government regulations. Such a system is at variance with our system of law which is based on the fundamental principle of equality. . . .

"One class of American citizen is just as much entitled to employment as another class. The limited opportunities or women in the industrial world, as everywhere else, often force women to offer their services at lower rates than men do. When prejudice, union rules, and legal restrictions are relaxed sufficiently to admit women to all callings which they are capable of following they will undoubtedly be able to demand higher pay. The teaching profession was underpaid for years because it was practically the only profession open to women. As soon as educated women began to find opportunities in other fields, teachers' salaries improved. Women in business and the professions know the temptation of overcoming the prejudice by lowering charges and fees. It is really not strange that each group of workers opposes the entry of women into its ranks. The remedy is a matter of opening all doors, not in weighting the scales still further against the woman worker."

Restaurants Affected

Then on top of this has come a formal statement from Jane Norman Smith, of the National Woman's party, declaring that the supreme decision this week was a "victory for women," pointing out that the hotel and restaurant associations had publicly declared that, if the laws were upheld in New York, they would be obliged to discharge thousands of women employees. It was estimated that 50,000 women were employed in restaurants and hotels.

Ample testimony, according to the statement, has been given in Ohio, Oregon and Massachusetts that minimum wage laws resulted in the discharge of women and the hiring of boys or men. The statement then adds:

"Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, stated on April 27, 1933, at a hearing before the house of representatives committee on labor that, if male workers withdrew their opposition to minimum wage legislation 'they may well understand that they have again become serfs, not under domination of employers as such but of the nation.' William Green, president of the Federation, has voiced the opposition of organized labor to minimum wage laws for men on the ground that 'the minimum tends to become the maximum' but they would not object to it for women. Women are wary of a gift that men do not want for themselves.'"

President Roosevelt has said that there exists a 'no-man's land' on this subject of fixing minimum wages, since the supreme court of the United States had this week decided that neither the federal nor the state governments had the power to fix wages as such.

As a matter of fact, what exists is an "everyman's land" and it ought also be called woman's land," this being the area of rights reserved to the people themselves by the Tenth Amendment of the Constitution, which says:

"The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people."

That little phrase "or to the people" means that only the people can say whether any new rights shall be subtracted from them, such as the liberty to contract freely for wages, and entrusted in either a federal government commission or a state government commission.

But to draw a constitutional amendment authorizing the fixing of minimum wages would draw down the opposition of labor unions, which do not want any minimum wage legislation for men. So it all comes down to whether anybody is going to push a constitutional amendment especially to protect women when a large and aggressive group of women are battling to have an amendment adopted which will guarantee them civil rights, just as the nineteenth amendment gave them political rights.

Marquette Group In Tax Disputes

BY PAUL MAY

Washington, D. C.—The Keweenah Land Association, Ltd., Marquette, Mich., is fighting the commissioner of internal revenue over an alleged income tax deficiency for 1933 because it claims the commissioner did not allow sufficient deductions for depletion of land and timber.

Asserting it should be allowed depletion deductions on timber and land of $42,242.87 and $5,419.73, respectively, the Keweenah Land association, in a petition filed with the board of tax appeals, denied owing the government anything for the questioned year.

The company's tax returns are prepared on a cash basis, it was asserted. During 1933, the company got in cash only $8,882.68 on its land holdings, and $15,144.55 for its timber. The deductions for depletion requested were figured on the basis of the holdings on March 1, 1913.

The commissioner, refusing to allow the deductions, said that figuring income tax returns on the basis of cash was all right, but that information in his office showed the company had been selling both land and timber on credit.

Stating that this was hardly consistent, the commissioner said the deductions could not be allowed unless the company produced further evidence proving its contention.

Federal Building At Menominee To Get An Addition

BY PAUL MAY

Washington, D. C.—Menominee will get an addition to its present Federal building, instead of a new postoffice building, according to indications today at the procurement division of the treasury.

This indication is based on a preliminary investigation of the Menominee postal situation, which has been completed, in accordance with a promise made by the procurement division to the appropriations committee of the House of Representatives.

Because the investigation was preliminary, construction of a new Federal building in Menominee is not foreclosed, it was pointed out. The decision rests with the joint treasury-postoffice board which has jurisdiction over Federal building matters, technically known as the interdepartmental committee on Federal buildings and sites.

This committee will have to decide not only what is to be done to provide more space for Federal activities at Menominee, but also whether any construction, either of a new building or in the nature of remodeling, is to be undertaken this year.

Menominee is one of the cities eligible for allotment of funds out of the sixty million dollar appropriation carried by the first deficiency bill. Roughly one in three of the eligible cities will get an allotment for a specific project.

Menominee's selection as one of the cities to get an allotment will depend on a clear showing of greater need than any other eligible town in the same congressional district, since the provision of the bill that projects shall be "equitably distributed" has been interpreted as meaning at least one project to a congressional district, and funds available are not sufficient to construct more than one building in any one district, except in cases of exceptional need, and involving relatively small buildings.

Decision to remodel and extend the present Menominee Federal building will mean a new and more complete investigation will be ordered, to determine just what form of remodeling is most expedient, how extensive such remodeling should be, and whether the new addition should be in the nature of an annex, or an extra story or stories. Upon this second investigation definite plans will be based.

July 28 Deadline Set For Petitions

Candidates for nomination for the offices of United States Senator, Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Representative in Congress, State Senator and Representative in the State Legislature, must file their nominating petitions with the Secretary of State not later than 5:00 P. M., Eastern Standard time, Tuesday, July 28, according to a notification form on file in that office.

The minimum number of petitioners whose names must be signed to petitions of candidates for United States Senator, Governor and Lieutenant Governor, is prescribed by the election law as being equal to not less than one per cent of the vote polled in the last preceding election for the office of Secretary of State by the party of the filing candidate.

Republican candidates for these three offices must file petitions bearing at least 5,862 names; democratic candidates' petitions must bear at least 5,756 names. Petitions must not bear more than four times the minimum provided, however. Further provisions on this point are that the petitions must be signed by at least 100 residents in each of at least 20 of the counties of the state, with no more than 25 per cent of the minimum required number of signatures being those of voters resident in any one county.

Nebel of Munising defended Mr. and Mrs. Ajdescheck and Alger county prosecuting attorney acted in behalf of the people.

Zioncheck Tunes Up for Another 'Big Push'

In this rare photograph of Representative Marion Zioncheck on the defensive, the playboy congressman from Seattle is pictured in bed at Gallinger hospital in Washington, D. C., after physicians said he was "suffering from overwork," and prescribed rest. His enforced stay at the hospital, where he was held for observation, punctuated five months of antics. He was jailed five times, married, took a riotous honeymoon, allegedly ejected his landlady from his capital apartment, tried to enlist the aid of President Roosevelt in locating his missing bride, and sought the arrest of Vice President Garner on charges of "conspiracy" to detain her.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

WORLD'S END

LATE in 1835, Charles Darwin arrived at a group of islands lying on the equator in the Pacific, where he found strange birds and animals that helped him formulate his revolutionary theory of evolution. Here, amid hundreds of craters and cold lava rock, he found the huge tortoises called "galapagos," from which the islands got their name.

Today, these Galapagos Islands are the "world's end" for scientists and adventurers. Arrivals find there a fascination which led the Spaniards, who discovered the group centuries ago, to call them "The Enchanted Isles." Today, hardly a tortoise exists there, but many of these strange old creatures may be found in zoos throughout the world. Owned by Ecuador, the islands originally harbored a penal colony.

Early in 1936, Ecuador issued a set of stamps for the islands. The stamp shown here pictures a "galapago."

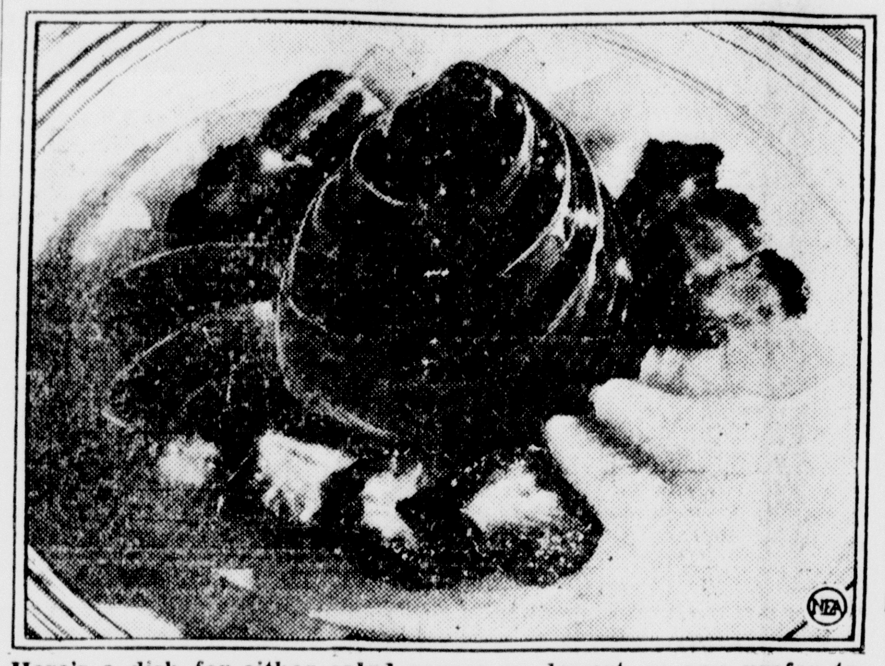
BREAD IS OUR BEST AND CHEAPEST FOOD

For Hungry Girl Graduates



Here's a dish for either salad course or dessert, as you prefer to serve it—spiral cones of molded gelatin surrounded by fresh strawberries and pineapple.

The sweet-girl-graduate, ethereal, as she sometimes is, is vitally interested in food, and when she is on a committee, mother might as wel lmake up her mind to help. Say it's a class breakfast she has to plan.

There are two or three well defined differences between a breakfast and a luncheon. For instance, the breakfast coffee, always served in large cups, may be brought on with the main course, while luncheon coffee is served at the end of the meal.

The breads are hot for breakfast, eggs in some form if only in a sauce are demanded, a soup is not served, a salad is permitted but must be simple, and a formal sweet should not be served before high noon. With these exceptions any foods you would use for a luncheon are suitable for breakfast.

Funds Determine Main Course

The main course depends upon how much money you have. Thus chicken is fine, but veal birds are good, too, and cheaper. Creamed peas and potato marbles rolled in minced parsley go well with either meat.

Among salads popular with the young are stuffed tomato, jellied vegetable, frozen cheese and head lettuce with Thousand Island dressing.

A gelatin dessert is fine, only don't have a jellied salad if you have a jelied dessert. Sqluares of cake may be frosted wtih class numerals. Mints in the class colors and salted nuts finish a menu which would read like this:

Banquet Menu

Consomme Toasted Crackers
Olives Radishes Celery Hearts
Veal Birds
Potato Marbles Creamed Peas
Hot Buttered Rolls Preserves
Stuffed Tomato Salad
Spiral Cones Class Cake
Mints Salted Nuts
Coffee

Spiral Cones

One package gelatin (any flavor), 2 cups warm water or water and fruit juice combined, pineapple, strawberries.

Dissolve gelatin in warm liquid. Turn into cone shaped molds and chill until firm. Unmold and garnish with wedges of pineapple alternating with slices of strawberries. Garnish with whipped cream when ready to serve. If you make the cones in tiny molds you can use them without the whipped cream for a first course. Or if you make the jelly tart with lemon juice and season it well with salt and pepper, a garnish of mayonnaise in place of whipped cream turns the concoction into a piquant fruit salad. Then if you have this for salad serve ice cream for dessert.

Handicapped School Children Learning Music Under W. P. A.

The world of words and music is coming alive for deaf and otherwise handicapped Michigan school children through the cooperation of WPA bands and orchestras.

Already in practical operation in Jackson, the use of WPA musical units in the training of handicapped pupils will be extended to other Michigan cities, including Detroit, Izler Solomon, state director of WPA music phojects, has announced.

The Jackson Board of Education recently introduced into its classes for the deaf and hard of hearing a phonographic device which enables the pupils, with the aid of ear phones and a dial for adjusting the volume to their individual needs, to hear records of lessons prepared by the teacher. Many of them had never heard music until the WPA orchestra, under the direction of Fred Lewis, recently played for them as an experiment. A microphone hooked up with the machine rendered the music audible, a result plainly apparent in the expression of the children's faces and the fact that some of them, who had never before uttered a sound, afterwards started humming the melody.

The experiment was so successful that, under instructions from the state director, the orchestra will play for the class at least once a week hereafter. The present arrangement is an outgrowth of a previous experiment, which demonstrated that the children, by placing their hands on the various instruments, could detect the rhythm of the music. Batons were placed in their hands and they were able to beat time unerringly.

Several cities in Michigan have adopted the phonographic device for the instruction of deaf pupils. Among them are Detroit, Flint, Saginaw, Holland and Lansing, and in each of these places Solomon is arranging to make available the services of WPA musical organizations.

Brazil's post and telegraphs got approximately $10,200,000 for carrying 5,638,000,000 items of mail between 1931 and 1934, and about $7,860,00 for transmitting 605,770,000 words over 36,443 miles of wires.

ARE YOU ON THE BORDERLINE OF ACTUAL SICKNESS?

Constipation* Causes Discomfort, May Lead to More Serious Troubles

You may have days, perhaps even weeks, when you feel below par. Not sick enough to go to bed, but certainly not at your best. The trouble may be with your diet. Poorly balanced meals can affect your physical condition.

Meals which lack proper "bulk," for instance, may lead to common constipation. Continued neglect of this condition causes discomfort, may lead to headaches, poor appetite, listlessness.

Guard against common constipation.* Make sure the meals you eat contain plenty of "bulk." Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a generous source of effective "bulk." Within the body, it absorbs moisture, forms a soft mass, and gently cleanses the system.

Two tablespoonfuls daily, with milk or cream, are usually sufficient. Stubborn cases may require ALL-BRAN oftener. Serve ALL-BRAN either as a cereal, or cooked into muffins, breads, etc. Eat it regularly for regular habits.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed by the Kellogg Company. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Michigan In Washington

By Esther Van Wagoner Tufty

The out-in-front candidate for national Democratic committeeman, "Ed" Shields, of Lansing, is in Washington. But he won't talk. Not until elected. However he is listening.

One of the things that is being whispered in his ear is the suggestion that, if and when elected, he keep a permanent representative in the capital. The Wayne county congressmen would like to name the man. Their choice, at present, is Don Canfield, executive secretary of the state central committee.

Resolute Shields is firm that he will make no pre-election promise—except one. He promises that if he is chosen, he and he alone will be national committeeman.

More than 6000 farm women had tea at the White House. And did they love it! Gathered in Washington from every state and from 20 foreign countries for the triennial conference of the Associated Country Women of the World, they were greeted by the President, smiling and informal. Mrs. Roosevelt, wearing Eleanor blue, moved about here and there chatting with her guests.

Anyone expecting these farm women to look awkward and out of place at a White House garden party was sadly disappointed. In their light summer dresses, they made a big hit with veteran society editors bored with the routine social whirl, who were charmed by their naturalness and wholesome enjoyment.

Adding splashes of color to the scene on the South lawn were the gay peasant costumes of the farm women from foreign countries.

Congressman Hoffman rushed off to Michigan apparently not a bit intimidated by recent threatening letters signed by KKK members. He had no sooner left the capital than Representative Young of Ohio began offering him competition in tossing off such pretty names as "charlatan, faker, racketeer and fraud" at Hoffman's favorite target, Dr. Townsend. Young also called the plan itself "just another chain letter racket."

It looks very likely that the new Michigan hospital for veterans will be located 1½ miles south of Dearborn Inn on a tract of 37 acres, the gift of Henry Ford. Although President Roosevelt has not yet approved the location, his signature is anticipated to this recommendation made by Brigadier General Frank T. Hines, administrator of the Veterans Bureau.

All of which recalls the agitation for a branch hospital to serve the Upper Peninsula—but Congressman Hook says it is still in that unsatisfactory state of "being pushed."

Many a congressman's wife, disgusted that Congress "never closes when it is supposed to" is deserting the capital.

In the first caravan west was the Brown's cadillac. After the last box, suitcase and "almost-forgotten" article were heaped in the back seat, the congressman dumped the youngest of the seven Brown children on top and away they went to Cleveland.

Then by boat to Detroit, where Mrs. Brown will head north to their beloved 11th district, while he speeds back to push through the Mackinaw Straits bridge legislation.

A break for the Republicans still clinging to postmaster jobs in Michigan is seen in the decision of Postmaster General Farley not to make appointments until a new national committeeman is selected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Horatio Abbott. Only the few pending ones, which Mr. Abbott had more or less approved, will be recommended to the President for nomination.

So many Michiganders want to come to Washington by air that the Pennsylvania Air Lines has had to add another ship out of Detroit. So now you can hop a plane in Detroit at 5 o'clock—and arrive at the capital just too late for "dinner at eight."

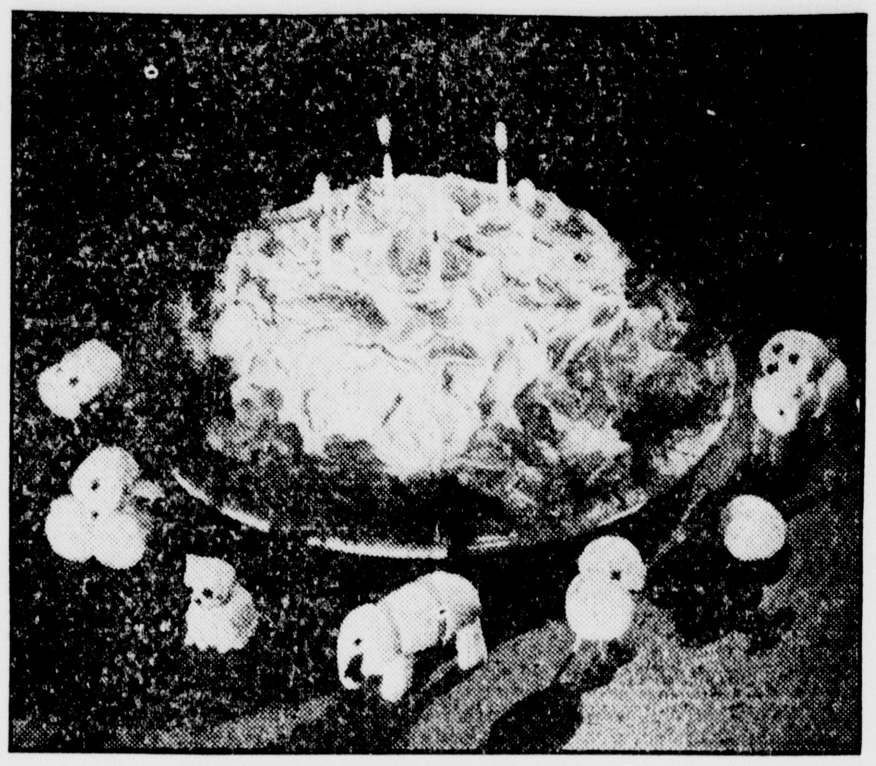
Marshmallow Favors for Party



"HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO YOU"
These clever children's party favors—giraffe, kitty, chick, bow-wow, duck, and elephant—were made from fresh, fluffy marshmallows, jelly strings, gumdrops, cloves, and toothpicks.

"Happy birthday to you, happy birthday to you"—and what could be a nicer way to say it than to give this young "him" or "her" a birthday party?

There'll be cake 'n' ice cream, of course, but why not make it a circus birthday party? Why not decorate the table with make-them-yourself, good-to-eat marshmallow ducks, cats, elephants, bow-wows, etc? They are so easy to make that both you and the young host or hostess will have lots of fun making these queer little marshmallow animals.

First of all, let's review the working rules for turning these versatile, fluffy marshmallows into favors: (1) Use scissors for cutting the marshmallows and dip them in cold water frequently, (2) dip fingers in cornstarch when they become the least bit sticky, (3) The marshmallows are secured with toothpicks—remember to dampen the toothpicks before inserting them, (4) Always use fresh, moist marshmallows; use jelly strings, gumdrops, and whole cloves as finishing accessories to make the favors illustrated.

These marshmallow favors are very easy to make. Once you get the hang of making them, you can readily make all of them. To make the elephant, for example, moisten the tops (large ends) of two marshmallows and secure them together with two toothpicks). Set aside for the body. Then take a marshmallow and cut it through the center, then cut a thick slice in half, lengthwise, making four square oblong pieces; these are the legs. Insert toothpicks (dipped in water) in them, leaving a short end projecting to attach to the body. Roll in cornstarch and set aside.

Next comes the head—trunk and all. To make this, hold a marshmalow between thumb and finger (large side or top toward you). Start below the center front and cut around the edge of the marshmallow almost to the top; leave attached—this is the trunk! Next make two large slashes along either side of marshmallow for ears, also leaving them well attached. Then turn upside down and fill these three cuts with cornstarch. Cut away the lower half of the marshmallow, leaving ears well below it. Shape head and trunk by snipping away small pieces of marshmallow with scissors. Make holes for eyes with a wet toothpick and place tiny squares of gumdrop in these holes. Pat head with cornstarch and stick two wet toothpicks in the neck to use later for attaching head to body.

Back to the body. Cut a tail in the second marshmallow and dust with cornstarch. This then brings us to the business of assembling the animal who "never forgets." Attach the legs to the body by pushing the projecting (dampened) toothpicks into the marshmallow body. Using the tip of the scissors, carefully push the toothpicks (dampened) which have been inserted in the head into the body. Make tusks of jelly strings which have been cut in small strips and insert in the proper place with short toothpicks. Lastly dust the elephant with cornstarch, press into shape, and allow to dry.

Thompson Likes Borah's Theory

Chicago, June 3 (AP)—William Hale (Big Bill) Thompson, former mayor of Chicago, said tonight in an open letter addressed to Senator William E. Borah of Idaho that he was "organizing a new party" in Illinois with a creed of "Americanism" and opposition to monopolies.

"I believe like you," said Thompson, who recently announced he was considering running for governor of Illinois next fall as an independent candidate, "that many of the evils which we must contend with as a people are due solely to the growth of monopoly in our country."

Wire Basket Aid To Crisp Salads

Thank goodness, the cult of salad-making is advancing. Time was when people did dreadful things to the noble green, but no more.

To be quite perfect, salad greens should be thoroughly chilled and crisped and served without trace of water clinging to the surface. Therefore allow plenty of time to take care of the business properly. The wire salad baskets make for quick work but if you tie the greens loosely in a big square of cheesecloth and swing vigorously you will accomplish the same result.

Place on Menu Varies

In some parts of the country hostesses like to serve the salad immediately following the soup course. In this case the salad acts as an appetizer and whets jaded appetites. Naturally, this type of salad must be piquant and not substantial. However, authorities on just how to do things seem to be agreed that the best place for the salad course is following the meat course in the dinner menu.

Hearty salads are welcome for Sunday night suppers and noon luncheons. The combination of meat and vegetables is excellent and the following salads are nourishing and economical examples of this type of salad.

Serve ham salad with rye bread and butter and a fruit dessert.

Ham Salad

One and one-half cups diced cold boiled ham, 1½ cups diced cold boiled potatoes, 1 cup diced celery, 1 hard cooked egg, mayonnaise. Combine ham, potatoes and celery, tossing lightly with a fork. Add mayonnaise to make moist and serve on crisp lettuce. Garnish with slices of hard cooked egg.

Potato Salad a la Russe

Two cups diced potatoes, ½ teaspoon grated onion, ½ cup diced pickled beets, 4 sardines, 4 hard cooked eggs, mayonnaise, lettuce.

Use small new potatoes. Scrub and boil in salted water until tender. Peel as soon as cool enough to handle. Cut into neat dice and chill. Remove skin and bones from sardines and separate into flakes. Cut eggs in slices. Combine materials lightly with mayonnaise and serve on crisp lettuce.

Some other good combinations for inexpensive salads are the following:

Tuna fish, celery, hard cooked eggs, mayonnaise and lettuce.

Salmon and peas combined with shredded lettuce and served on a bed of romaine with maponnaise.

Boiled veal, diced carrots, celery and diced pineapple combined wtih mayonnaise and served on a bed of endive.

Equal parts of diced ham, shredded cabbage and pineapple combined with mayonnaise.

June Flowers to Carry Cheer to All Shut-Ins

"Every blossom of June's surplus of flowers is destined to bring cheer and happiness to some unfortunate permanent shut-in on Sunday, June 14. Not one blossom will be allowed to perish unseen and unappreciated."

This was the declaration yesterday of Walter F. Wickert, local florist, who is serving as chairman of the Escanaba Shut-in Day committee. Along with 2,300 similar committees, operating in as many cities and towns of the United States and Canada, the local florists are preparing for the fourth annual International Flower Shut-in Day.

Already, the names and addresses of permanent shut-ins who rarely, if ever, see and enjoy flowers, are beginning to pour into the shops of this city's florists. These names and addresses, suggested by the public, are being turned over to the local committee, duties of which are to obtain the flowers, arrange them and see that they are quickly delivered on June 14.

Wednesday night, June 10, has been set as the deadline for names, although June 14 is the date of the observance. This, it was explained by the local chairman, will enable the florists to prepare themselves better for a tremendous day of deliveries.

Sponsored and directed by the Florists' Telegraph Delivery association, with more than 10,000 members throughout the world, International Flower Shut-in Day in three short years has become a highly significant movement. During the first observance, June 10, 1933, a total of 150,000 permanent shut-ins were reached. On June 10, 1934, flowers were delivered to more than half a million shut-ins. In 1935, close to a million requests for flowers were honored.

"We ask that our fellow citizens get us the names and addresses of deserving permanent shut-ins they know of as quickly as possible," urged Mr. Wickert.

Rev. Foster Is Named Member of Committee

Rev. Thomas Foster, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal church of this city, was elected a member of the standing committee of the diocese, at the closing session of the forty-first annual convention of the Episcopal diocese of Marquette, which was held Tuesday and Wednesday at St. Paul's cathedral, Marquette.

Rev. Mr. Foster also was named a delegate to the provincial synod to be held in Madison, Wis., in October.

Rev. O. M. Langley, of Ironwood, formerly of this city, was named a member of the Bishop and Council for a term ending in 1937.

Mrs. Thomas Foster and Mrs. E. L. Nicholson are among those present at the Woman's Auxiliary convention, held in connection with the regular diocesan conference.

Church Events

Christian Science Churches

"God the Only Cause and Creator" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, June 7.

Among the Bible citations is this passage (II Cor. 4:6): "For God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 258): "God expresses in man the infinite idea forever developing itself, broadening and rising higher from a boundless basis."

Mrs. Euston L. Gaynor and daughter, Joan, of Flint, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Dickson, 1016 Eighth avenue south.

Impressive Commencement Exercises Held at St. Joseph's High School

"Be true to your heritage as an American and as a Catholic," was the admonition given St. Joseph's high school graduating class last evening by Attorney George Carr, at the annual commencement exercises held at St. Joseph auditorium.

Opening his address with the customary congratulations to the candidates for graduation, and describing high school commencement as the most important stepping stone and dividing line in life, he spoke at length of the heritage of the class.

"It is your without effort on your part," he declared, "by the free grace of God."

He spoke of the blessings of the country, which are too often taken for granted and seldom appreciated, freedom of speech and freedom of religious worship, and discussed the forces in conflict in the country today, expressing the hope that the surge of social forces seeking social security and the force which claims that this security is being purchased at the cost of the fundamentals of American liberty, will find an adjustment.

He urged the proper guidance of intelligence, describing intelligence without moral responsibility as the most dangerous element in existence, and the cause of many of the deplorable conditions of the past few years.

Opening Processional

The impressive commencement exercises opened with the traditional processional, presenting the student body and the seniors in caps and gowns, in a faultless drill and group formation, for which the high school orchestra played the accompanying music. The ensemble, forming a well balanced chorus, ably directed, sang "The Happy Summer Time," Huerter, and "Summer Winds Blow," Strauss, the recessional following.

The Salutatory by Theresa M. Knauf, and the Valedictory by Mary Lou Hirn, both excellently given, followed.

The diplomas were conferred by Rev. Fr. Edward Leary, O. F. M., superintendent of the school, to the following students:

William Allingham, Bernard Amme, Ether Birk, Eleanor Campbell, Donald DeGrand, Mark Fassbender, Francis Fitzharris, Margaret Gallagher, Mary Jane Goodman, John Gray, Clayton Groleau, Marijane Henry, Bernice Herson, Harold Hirn, Mary Lou Hirn, Jack Kassick, Dorothy Kidd.

Theatres

AT THE DELFT

"Moonlight Murder," and "Timothy's Quest" are one the Delft theatre's double feature program today and Saturday.

With a spectacular grand opera setting for a climacteric sequence, "Moonlight Murder," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new mystery romance deals with the slaying of a tenor before an audience of twenty thousand at the Hollywood Bowl.

As the tenor, Leo Carrillo makes his first appearance as a singer since his musical comedy days on the stage. He sings the famous aria to Azucena in Verdi's "Il Trovatore," the initial scene also including the "Gypsy Dance" and the "Anvil Chorus."

"Timothy's Quest"

Two promising youngsters, four child starlets, and a supporting cast of seasoned troupers make "Timothy's Quest" one of the most interesting cast pictures in years.

Eleanore Whitney, the 18-year-old dancing sensation, has her first leading feminine role in this presentation. Tom Keene, three years her senior, plays opposite her. They constitute a new romantic team.

Dickie Moore, who plays the title role, Virginia Weidler, Sally Martin and Bennie Bartlett, comprise the quartet of kiddies.

Among the veterans who balance the cast are Samuel S. Hinds, character actor, Esther Dale and Elizabeth Patterson, of Shakespearean fame.

"HARSH SOAP IS TOO EXPENSIVE FOR ME the way it can shorten the life of clothes"

says MRS. WILLIAM M. RICHARDSON

"I bought some cheap soap one day in an attempt to save a few pennies. But oh! what an expensive experiment that was! The suds were so weak and watery I had to add more and more soap. Worse than this, I had to rub so hard that my linens and children's clothes began to wear out long before they should have. It didn't take me long to get back to safe American Family—it's the only soap I'll ever trust on the new things I bought. I can't afford any other kind."

YES, American Family Soap makes washing easier, safer, quicker . . . because the formula is created especially for the water of this region. You get more real suds-making material . . . purer, creamier DOUBLE-SUDS. That's economy for you! And these double-suds, you know, work double-fast yet gently. Out floats even the grimiest dirt—rinses completely—without hard rubbing. Colors stay true. All washables keep life, newness, months longer. Next washday, just try American Family Soap. See what a "find" it is in cutting washing time and labor, in saving money on clothes needs. Here's added proof—Chicago women buy more American Family brand than any other.

Steamer Paisley Docks Two Cargoes Of Aggregate Here

The steamer Robert J. Paisley of the Morrow Steamship line landed cargoes of sand and stone for road and highway aggregate here at the Coffey Coal and Dock company dock on Saturday afternoon and Tuesday evening. Cargoes neared the 1500 ton mark on each occasion.

The sand, totalling about 1120 tons and nearly 600 tons of stone are to be used as aggregate on the new US-2 location by the Wilmer Pierson Construction company, which is now nearing completion of the laying of concrete between Manistique and Thompson. The balance of the stone is for the city street department.

Deadly Infection Found As Source Of Dog's Disease

East Lansing, Mich., June 3 (AP) —Dr. H. J. Stafseth, professor of bacteriology at Michigan State college, revealed today he has isolated a new streptococcic organism that he blamed for a high mortality among valuable puppies.

Dr. Stafseth said the ailment was the cause of mysterious deaths that had puzzled kennel operators for several years. Puppies apparently well and strong would die within a few minutes from no apparent cause.

Dr. Stafseth said the infection, apparently more or less harmless to mature dogs, was transmitted from the mothers to their young, killing them quickly. He said he had developed a vaccine to immunize the mothers, but still was searching for an immunizing for the young.

Some kennel operators have lost heavily, with the deaths of entire litters of puppies.

Naval Censorship Shrouds Maneuvers

San Pedro, Calif., June 3 (AP)—Rigid naval censorship shrouded tonight the extent to which the United States fleet was crippled by the second annual maneuvers conducted by Admiral J. M. Reeves.

Departure today of the battleships New Mexico and Mississippi for emergency repairs at the Bremerton navy yard in Puget Sound revealed the most powerful unit in the main battle fleet underwent serious breakdown.

In last year's maneuvers eight lives were lost in plane crashes and destroyer collisions. Several planes were lost and a number of destroyers damaged.

This year no casulty list has been made public by Admiral Reeves although two aviators were reported unofficially to have lost their lives. It was the first time in history that a fleet commander-in-chief denied passage to newspapermen.

Editor Impressed By Gov. Alf Landon

Detroit, June 3 (AP) —Malcolm W. Bingay, editorial director of the Detroit Free Press, who visited recently with Governor Alfred M. Landon of Kansas, told a radio audience tonight that "We are witnessing the most amazing political phenomenon of our times—a case where the office is seeking the man and not the man the office'.'

"I feel," he said, "that Landon will catch the imagination of the American people because he will sweep this country like a cooling fresh breeze from the prairies, cleansing the national atmosphere of the miasma of isms that have afflicted us.

"His clear, sound thinking will awaken us from our nightmare of frustration and befuddlement, of hokum and ballyhoo."

Giving his personal impressions of the Kansas governor as a Republican presidential nominee, Bingay declared: "He has what it takes."

SCHOOL HERE GETS TROPHY

Safety Award Is Given St. Francis de Sales Grade School

In recognition of the splendid safety work carried on during the past school year, the St. Francis de Sales parochial school has been awarded the American Automobile association safety trophy. Presentation of the trophy was made on Wednesday by C. E. Underwood, president of the Manistique Lions club. Mr. Underwood spoke briefly urging a continuation of the observance of safety rules throughout the summer.

The St. Francis school award came as a result of the faithful work of its schoolboy safety patrols and the consistent safety work carried on throughout the year in correlation with the regular school work. The subject of safety was a part of the school program two or three times each week.

Safety patrols of schoolboys were organized here in the safety campaign sponsored by the Lions club with Trooper Ralph Sheehan of the traffic division of the state police. The trophy award to the school here was made through the Detroit branch of the automobile association and is the only one to a school in the 21 northern counties of Michigan.

The trophy is a silvered statuette about ten inches high. It is a representation of a safety patrol boy wearing the Sam Browne belt insignia and with hand upraised. The figure is standing on a globe, representing the world and is mounted on a square base.

Patrol boys of the city who have been active in the schools of the city system as well as those of the award winning school will be the guests of the Lions club at a movie show at the Gero theatre on Monday evening.

This year there have been no accidents to school pupils in either the city or county where the safety patrols have been in operation.

I think people are getting away from the psychology that it makes them feel rich to be able to jingle silver dollars. Nowadays a fat roll of bills is much more convincing.

CHAPTER XIV

"Good morning, Miss Everett," exclaimed Miss Carolie next morning. "I guess you'll have to carry on alone again today, for Madame can't come down. If there's anything I can do to help you, just let me know. Better keep right on with the models for the 'Pre-Holiday Parade'."

"All right," Gail said as she hurried to her desk. But as soon as she had things started for the day she stepped into the telephone booth and called Derek. There was no answer. She tried again at noon, and still later on her way home, but no gay voice came to her over the wire.

She called again the next day, and the one after that, but still there was no reply. Gail could not understand it. Surely there must have been some urgent necessity that had made Derek call her twice in such a short time. A thousand worrying thoughts sped through her mind as the week drew to a close. Why had he failed to keep his date with her?

But throughout the week Gail had little time to think of her own affairs, for Madame's injuries had proved more serious than she had first thought and the burden of the work rested on Gail. One afternoon Madame Lizette sent for her to come to the apartment with Ariadne so that she might give her special instructions about some of the models.

Gail had gone with decided misgivings, for Ariadne had been far from helpful. The moment Gail's back was turned Ariadne would slip from the fitting room, and time as well as patience had to be wasted hunting for her. And while she posed, Adriadne kept complaining about everything, as if the young designer hadn't enough worries already! What made Gail especially annoyed was that, when they were at Madame's, Ariadne took particular pains to be most charming.

Gail wondered about this as she directed Toinette with her work on Friday afternoon. Perhaps the finisher sensed what was in the girl's mind, for she said, "You mustn't mind Ariadne. You see, Madame promised her that she'd give her a chance to do some designing. She never has and that's why Ariadne is so disagreeable."

"So that explains it! Well, I'll see if I can't do something about that."

But at that moment Lita entered. "Rita Cordell's in the showroom and Carolie says for you to show her some of the fashion show styles. If she wants photographs, ask her to tell you which models she can use and we'll have the pictures made for her."

"All right, Lita. I'll be there in a minute," Gail said, and hastily finished explaining to Toinette about some ruffles.

A moment later she went forward to meet the newspaper fashion editor.

"How do you do, Miss Everett," Rita Cordell said. "I hear Madame Lizette's had quite a nasty accident."

"Yes," Gail replied, "but I think surely by next week she'll be able to come back again. I'll have Clytie slip on some of the things we've been making for our 'Pre-Holiday Parade'!"

"Oh, but that's too much trouble for you. I can look at them on the hangers."

"You'll get a much better idea of the lines if you see them on a model," Gail said as she summoned Clytie.

For the next half hour the fashion editor studied the new gowns. Then she said, "I must congratulate you, Miss Everett. Your things are lovely. I'd like to use that green sport ensemble and the little tea dance frock on my page.'

"All right, Miss Carolie is having photographs made and she'll send them to you."

"Oh, thanks. Remember if there's anything I can do for you at any time, don't hesitate to call on me. Still, I don't supose you'll be thinking of making a change —at least not for some time?"

"I don't think so, but I'll give you a call if I do."

"Fine! Be sure to read the Sunday paper—I mean the one a week from this coming Sunday. That's when I'm planning to use your dresses."

Gail ate a hurried dinner at the clubhouse that evening and was ready to leave when she ran into Natalie in the hall.

"Say, where have you been keeping yourself, Gail? I've knocked at your door till my knuckles are skinned!"

"I've been working late. Madame's still away. If she gets back next week, let's make a night of it Monday."

"Why not tonight?" questioned Natalie.

"Sorry, I can't make it. I'm going to the library to look up some special period costumes."

"Well, don't work too hard!" Natalie was annoyed. She had counted on having Gail's company whenever she wished it, for she knew the other girl had few friends in the city.

As she walked rather disconsolately toward the elevator she heard a bellboy shouting, "Call for Miss Everett . . . call for Miss Gail Everett."

Quickly she hurried toward him. "Miss Everett's just stepped outdoors. If you rush you may catch her."

A moment later she saw Gail enter the foyer with the bellhop. Natalie stepped into the elevator. Even if she did want to know who was calling Gail she couldn't very well question her now.

Gail entered the booth and said over the telephone, "Do you wish to speak to Gail Everett?"

"You bet I do," came the vibrant voice of Derek Hargreaves. "But first I want to apologize for not taking you to the Ferrara Gallery. I was called out of town unexpectedly, and didn't have a moment to write you. I hope you'll forgive me."

"Oh, that's all right!" Gail's heart was beating happily as she answered. "I tried to get you the next day. I was out with one of the girls that evening and we didn't get home until after midnight. I thought that was too late then to phone."

"Never worry about that. I'm quite accustomed to late calls! But now that I've found you I want to know if you'll come with me to a reception at Mrs. Morton's. I'll drop around for you a little before 4 Sunday afternoon if that's O. K. with you?"

"That will be lovely. Thanks ever so much."

"Fine! Everything going all right?"

"I guess so. I'll tell you all about things Sunday." With a word of goodby Gail hung up the receiver.

When she reached the library her thoughts were in a whirl. Derek wanted her to meet the famous Mrs. Morton. They were going to her gorgeous duplex apartment on Park avenue. She got the books on costume design and made a few sketches, but she could not concentrate on her work.

The sound of chairs being pushed back, the quick, silent tread of attendants as they went from table to table collecting books and putting them once more in their places—usually a disappointment—was a relief to Gail. She hadn't got exactly what she'd wanted, but perhaps she'd manage to make out.

As she walked back to the clubhouse, she felt as though she was walking on air. She scarcely saw the brightly lighted streets with their crowds of men and women—many in evening dress—as they stepped from luxurious cars; humbler family parties watching the throngs, or straggling back to their homes; darting newsboys shrieking the latest headlines; down-and-outers begging for nickels and dimes.

Pity might have swelled in Gail's heart at the sight of these unfortunates or envy for those obviously enjoying wealth, but such thoughts were foreign to her mind at the moment. Derek had called and on Sunday she'd be with him again! What frock would she wear? The green one with the metallic trimming? Yes, that would do, for she had all the accessories to make it a striking ensemble!

"Come in," cried Gail, glancing up from the Sunday newspaper she had been reading, as she heard a knock at the door of her room. "Oh, it's you Natalie! I didn't see you at breakfast, so I thought perhaps you were week-ending with some of your relatives. It's such a lovely day!"

"Nothing like that. I've been loafing. Just got up . . . haven't even looked at the papers. Anything in them?"

"Nothing special. I was reading Rita Cordell's pages. Her articles are splendid!"

"Has she written you up yet?"

"Oh, no! I don't suppose she'll ever do that—unless I have my own place. Heaven knows when that will be, for it takes an awful lot to live even as simply as we do here."

"You're telling me? I've often thought it would be cheaper to have an apartment, but that means furnishing it or living with things you'd be sure to hate—or else having someone to share expenses. How'd you like to do that?"

"Mightn't be a bad move."

"Of course, we'd have some housework to do, for I don't suppose we could afford a housekeeper at first. I hate housework. But there, I'm ravenous. It's almost 1. Let's go down to dinner!"

"All right," Gail answered, wondering how she could shake Natalie afterwards. She did not want to tell her she was going out with Derek. Yet she knew that if Natalie came back with her and saw her dressing she'd want to know where she was going!

Five New Members Added To Volunteer Firemen's Group

Five new members were formally inducted into the ranks of the Gladstone Volunteer Firemen at a regular meeting of the organization Wednesday evening at the city hall.

The new members are Herb Holmberg, Ragnar Kallerson, Carl Haglund, William LaFond and Hilmer Hendrickson.

One of the regulars said that in passing the tests the men learned that looking into a nozzle is almost as dangerous as looking into the muzzle of a gun and that there may be many things in a smoke-filled room other than smoke.

BY FRANK MAC MILLEN
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, June 4 (AP)—Weakness in pivotal issues put the stock market under a downward pull today.

Selling pressure on leading groups like the steels, rails, utilities and motors, developing late in the session, gave the entire list a decidedly heavy appearance at the close, with losses ranging from 1 to around 3 points.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was lowered .9 of a point, marking the heaviest loss since May 19 last.

Earlier the trend had been highly irregular, with the undertone showing a degree of nervousness over the tense political and economic situation in France and the deepening of uncertainties respecting completion of the legislatiivei program and adjournment of congress.

Trading Is Light

Heaviest losers included Westinghouse which finished at 109½, off 2¼; Corn Products at 75 5-8, off 2 7-8; Union Pacific 125 1-8, off 2 3-8; Du Pont 141 3-8, off 2 5-8; Chrysler 92 7-8, off 1 7-8, and Sears Roebuck 71 1-8, off 1 5-8.

Declines of a point or more were were recorded by U. S. Steel at 59½, Bethlehem Steel at 50¾, American Smelting at 76, Santa Fe at 70, Western Union at 77¾, North American Co. at 25 5-8, Johns-Manville at 94½ and Continental Can at 75.

Up to mid-session or later some of the mining shares and scattered specialties had boasted moderate gains, but most of these were washed out by the late selling movement.

Trading continued at a low level, though the total of 766,890 shares represented a considerable improvement over Wednesday's transactions.

The bond market gave in indifferent performance, showing expansive soft spots in the secondary division and in the foreign list.

Commodities moved in mixed fashion. Wheat closed strong at advances of 7-8 to 1¾ cents a bushel. Cotton finished 15 cents a bale lower to 35 cents higher.

Few Curb Stocks Get Severe Blows

New York, June 4 (AP)—Guards lowered in the curb market today and a few issues were dealt stinging blows, although not much damage was inflicted on the main body of shares.

Aluminum Co. of America was dropped for a 6-point count at 115 and Newmont Mining retreated 2½ points to 82. Hudson Bay Mining suffered a 1¼-point jolt at 25.

Utility securities sagged a bit with holding company issues giving the most ground. Losses of the latter did not extend beyond a point. The action was dispirited throughout.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN

Minneapolis, June 4—Wheat, No. 1 heavy dark northern spring, 60 lbs., 1.09½ to 1.28½; No. 1 red durum, 76.

Flour 15 higher. Carload lots, family patents, 6.55 to 6.75 a barrel in 98 pound cotton sacks. Shipments 22,140.

Bran, 18.50 to 14.00.

LOSES DAMAGE SUIT

Marquette—Returning a verdict of "no cause for action," a circuit court jury of 9 men and three women decided in favor of Earl Brown, of Eben, defendant in a personal damage suit brought by James Norton, of Marquette.

The accident occurred one and one-fourth miles west of Dukes on M-28 and five persons were cut and bruised in the crash. Norton asked $10,000 for his injuries.

BY G. A. PHILLIPS
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, June 4 (AP)—Fresh uneasiness over the economic and political tension in Europe was reflected in sharp declines in a number of foreign dollar bonds in the listed market today.

While the general run of domestic corporate obligations managed to hold their own fairly well, the showing was attributed more to the lack of selling than to any other factor because there was a distinct lack of buying support in several issues that were offered in better than average volume.

U. S. governments leaned to the offside with losses of 1-32 to 8-32 of a point registered by most of the direct treasury and guaranteed issues. Longer term maturities displayed less resistance than others.

French 7½s dropped 5 7-8 points on sales of $9,000, par value; the 7s lost 1 on sales of $7,000; Poland 7s declined 2 7-8 on a single sale, and the 8s lost 4 7-8 on a turnover of $11,000. Japanese 5½s yielded 2 points, also on a good volume.

Schulco 6¼s dropped 11 points on light offerings. Allis Chalmers 4s declined 1¾ to 130½ and Paramount 6s declined 1 to 85¼. Schulco is controlled by the Shulte Retail Stores which yesterday filed papers for a reorganization. Two issues of Baltimore & Ohio bonds also were conspicuous on the offside.

Issues displaying resistance included Warner Bros. 6s, Illinois Central 4s, Columbia Gas 5s and U. S. Rubber 5s.

The Associated Press averages ranged from an advance of .1 of a point in the utilities to a decline of .1 of a point in the rails.

Transfers in all bonds totalled $10,654,000, par value, compared with $11,363,000 on Wednesday.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, June 4—Sharply higher wheat prices today resulted largely from reports 40 percent of spring crop acreage is now deteriorating from drought, with considerable damage irreparable.

Increasingly unfavorable crop news regarding spring wheat dominated values today from the outset. One tentative suggestion was that instead of recent unofficial estimates of 236,000,000 bushels 1936 domestic spring wheat production a nearer correct immediate forecase would be 150,000,000 bushels.

Wheat closed strong, 7-8 to 1 3-4 cents above yesterday's finish, July 85½ to 85 5-8, September 86 1-8 to 86¼, December 88 3-8 to 88½, corn ¼ to 1 3-8 up, July 61¼ to 61 3-8, September 58 1-8 to 58¼, December 52 3-4, oats 1-8 to 3-8 advanced, July 25¼, and rye showing ¼ to 7-8 gain, July 54 5-8. In provisions, the outcome was unchanged to 12 cents higher.

Leading the advance of wheat values was a rise of almost 3 cents a bushel at Minneapolis, the market center most closely in touch with conditions in the domestic spring crop belt. Right at the opening here, word of rainless skies and rising temperatures northwest, adverse conditions for spring wheat, gave the Chicago market a definite upward slant. Adding to trade uneasiness were fears expressed that there would be a return of abnormal heat in spring crop areas.

Corn, oats and rye sympathized with wheat price upturns. Rural offerings of corn were meager. Some specialists said drought northwest would likely injure oats and rye as well as wheat.

Provisions rallied with grains and because of Washington action for a duty on imported oils.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—July 84 3-4 to 84 7-8, 86¼ to 86 3-8; September 85 3-8 to 85½, 87 to 87 1-8; December 87½ to 87 5-8, 89¼ to 89 3-8. Corn—July 60 7-8, 61 3-4; September 57 7-8, 58 3-8; December 52 7-8 offers. Rye—July 54¼, 55 1-8; September 54 7-8, 55 5-8; December 54 7-8 bids.

The memory of these acts of kindness will always remain with us.

Par Takes Severe Beating in U. S. Open Tourney

THREE GOLFERS LEAD WITH 69

Johnny Revolta Shoots 70, Shows Great Putting Form

BY ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

Baltusrol Golf Club, Springfield, N. J., June 4 (AP)—The New Jersey countryside reverberated today from the most shocking blast of sub-par explosives ever set off in the 40-year history of the United States open golf championship.

As the shades of evening settled over the beautiful Baltusrol course, closing the most hectic opening day the tournament has ever known, Big Clarence Clark, of Bloomfield, N. J., once a terror of the winter circuit, came booming in to make the pace setting role a three-way affair with diminutive Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., and lanky Ray Mangrum of Dayton, Ohio, at the "quarter pole" of the 72-hole golfing derby.

Excellent Conditions

Each of the trio shot the course in 69, three strokes under par and a new competitive record for Baltusrol's upper course by a one-shot margin. Each missed chances to take undisputed possession of the lead but they couldn't offer much complaint about the "breaks" as they rode high, wide and handsome in front of the most spectacular par-shattering charge ever launched in the national open by the professional brigade.

Under cool grey skies, with the tee markers moved forward to cut fully 300 yards off the 6,866 yard course, the pins placed invitingly in the middle of the greens and nothing more menacing than a refreshing cross-breeze, the par-busters took advantage of playing conditions that were a sharp contrast to the terrors of Oakmont a year ago.

The did everything but take Baltusrol apart for the benefit of a gallery of nearly 5,000 fans. The day's unprecedented shotmaking record, after exactly 164 players had taken a whack at the course, showed no less than 14 players under par, all bunched within two shots of each, while ten others esualled the par of 72. This not only is an all-time record for any single round of open championship competition but it means the main battle is still wide open, with two dozen participants separated only by three shots, with 54 holes to go.

On the heels of the pace-setting trio, each a newcomer to this distinction, were formidable challengers and the promise that this may develop the greatest scoring melee of all time. One shot behind, at 70, came the betting favorite, tall Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., lantern-jawed Johnny Revolta of Chicago, the national P. G. A. champion and deadliest putter of the day; long-hitting Victor Ghezzi of Deal N. J.; 41-year-old Tom Kerrigan of Bronxville, N. Y., who played in the last open held at Baltusrol in 1915; and a pair of "dark horses" with a story to tell, Leslie Madison of Hollywood, Calif., and Frank Moore, entered from Hartsdale, N. Y., but lately moved to Cleveland, Ohio.

After they had galloped into the first day's picture it developed that Madison, now tutor to Hollywood's movie notables, once held the Cleveland job which Moore, a brother of the St. Louis' Cardinals' Terry Moore, has just accepted. Moore himself was a ball player of parts, a catcher, but prefers to seek the big leagues of golf.

Shute Takes 72

Tied for tenth place at 71, only two shots off the pace, were such title-seekers as blond Craig Wood of West Orange, N. J., making miraculous recoveries throughout a dazzling round; "Light Horse" Harry Cooper of Chicago, whose six on the par-four 13th cost him a great chance to join the leaders; and Ky Lafoon of Chicago, the part-Indian star, together with another duo of outsiders, Ted Longworth, the Pacific northwest's lone standard-bearer from Portland, Ore., and Johnny Bulla, youthful public course pro from Chicago.

So jammed was the traffic among the leaders by the time the ordinary par-shooters posted their scores of 72 that the experts gave them scant tumble. Nevertheless, shotmakers not to be lightly rated in the par-equalling bracket included Bill Burke, 1931 open champion; Denny Shute of Boston, former British open king; Zell Eaton, Oklahoma City's latest gift to professional ranks, and a trio of amateurs, Jimmy McGonagill of Dallas, Morton McCarthy of Virginia Beach, Va., and Chuck Kocsis, Michigan's Big Ten champion.

Here was a cross-section of golfing prowess, from all parts of the country, such as the tournament has never seen. Contemplating the fireworks with some chagrin, Gene Sarazen, the stocky former champion whose 75 left him six shots off the pace, voiced general sentiment among the professionals by remark'ng: "The wonder of it is that they didn't rip this course completely to pieces today. The door was wide open for any number of experts to clip six or seven strokes off par, the way the tees and pins were fixed."

Co-holder of two championship records that have yet to be broken—the low single round score of 66 and the low 72-hole total of 286—Sarazen's poor putting cost him his chance to keep pace with the leaders and dropped from the position of co-favorite with Picard.

Barring a drastic shift in playing conditions, it's a good bet the record of 286, which Chick Evans set in 1916 and Sarazen equalled in 1932, will be displaced by the time final returns are tabulated Saturday night. Another single round is on tomorrow's schedule, with the 36-hole finals, for low 60 and ties, for 60th place on Saturday.

Washington Loses To Brownies, 6-2

Washington, June 4. (AP)—Breaking the Washington jinx, the St. Louis Browns today snapped a string of six straight losses to the Senators this season by turning in a 6 to 2 victory.

Big Firpo Marberry, once dean of the league's relief hurlers, started and was charged with the defeat in the first game he has started for Washington after trying his hand at umpiring and returning to the game only to be released by the New York Giants. Marberry left the game with the score 3 to 2 against Washington in the seventh, after giving up six hits and a single walk.

Brooklyn Dodgers Defeat Cardinals

St. Louis, June 4 (AP)—Paul Dean failed in a relief pitching role today and gave up the tying and winning runs as the Brooklyn Dodgers snapped the Cardinals' four-game winning streak with a 4 to 3 setback.

The Dodgers' eighth-inning uprising, good for two runs, resulted in the defeat being charged against the younger of the Dean brothers, his fourth of the season. Up to the eighth, Rookie Jim Winford had held the Brooklyns in check, yielding two runs and five hits, before he was taken out for a pinch hitter.

Ed Brandt went the route for the Dodgers, and, although he allowed ten hits, he was tight in the pinches in turning in his third victory.

YANKEES LOSE TO WHITE SOX

New York Drubbed, 16-3; Whitehead Pitches for Chicago

New York, June 4 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox beat the Yankees at their own slugging game today, handing the league leaders their worst drubbing of the year by banging out 16 hits for a 16 to 3 victory.

They walloped four Yankee hurlers, including Monte Pearson, the league leader, while Johnny Whitehead was setting the vaunted New York sluggers down with four hits, one of which was Red Rolfe's homer in the third.

The defeat, suffered at the same time the Boston Red Sox were winning over the Cleveland Indians, cut the Yanks' first place margin to two and a half games, and gave the White Sox the current series 2-1—the first team to beat the New Yorkers in a series on their home grounds this year.

Zeke Bonura, with a double and two singles, batting in four runs, Rip Radcliff, with a homer and a pair of singles and Luke Sewell, also with a homer, faced the White Sox batting attack. For the Yanks, the only batting feature in addition to Rolfe's homer was a single by Joe di Maggio, stretching his consecutive game hitting streak to 17.

Pittsburgh Licks Boston Bees, 7-5

Pittsburgh, June 4 (AP)—The Boston Bees shelled Cy Blanton from the mound but the Bucs' 1935 star rookie won his second game when Paul Waner quelled a Boston uprising in the eighth with a leaping catch off the wall of Hal Lee's liner with two men on base. The score was 7-5.

The Bees scored one in the first and Gus Suhr sent the Pirates ahead in their half with a three run homer. Al Todd's double in the fourth scored two more Pirate runs and Blanton singled his catcher home. Two singles and an error accounted for the final Pittsburgh tally in the sixth.

The Bees bunched three hits in the seventh with an infield out for three runs and sent Blanton to the showers in the eighth with three successive hits. Mace Brown allowed the Bees one hit in relief. Johnny Lanning and Bob Smith hurled for Boston.

SPILLING the DOPE

BY JOHNNY INKSLINGER

With the defeat of Wilmer Allison by Jack Crawford in the Davis Cup matches and the elimination of the United States, the prediction of Bill Tilden, grand old man of tennis, came true. Tilden, who has long been at odds with the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association, has asserted on numerous occasions that America will never regain the cup she lost to France in 1927 until young players are developed with the Davis Cup matches in mind. Allison has been an in-and-outer for the past few seasons and his selection to the Davis Cup team never did appeal to Tilden, now one of the outstanding professional players.

—o—

The Lawn Tennis Association did go half way with Tilden's suggestions by choosing Don Budge, one of the ranking youngsters, and Budge came through nicely, winning both of his single matches.. Tilden believes that Germany will capture the international trophy in a year or so, perhaps even this season. Von Cramm, the German ace, is regarded as the outstanding internationalist by Tilden. That Tilden is not far wrong in his ranking of Von Cramm was shown in the French tournament recently when the German star defeated Perry, English ace who has been No. 1 world ace for the past couple years.

—o—

Although Mickey Cochrane is disappointed with the showing of his Detroit Tigers to date, particularly during their last home stay, the Tiger manager has not abandoned hope of winning the league pennant this year. Cochrane points out that in the past two seasons the Tigers failed to hit a winning stride until June and that last year particularly it was near the end of July before the Bengals moved into first place. Mickey figures his pitching staff, which has been meek thus far, will improve considerably now that warmer weather has arrived. The Tiger boss figures Rowe, Auker and Bridges will develop into regular winners and that Sorrell, Phillips and Crowder will fill in nicely.

—o—

Big Hank Greenberg expects to return to the lineup soon and Cochrane has made no secret of the fact that he expects Greenberg to provide the extra punch needed to put the Tigers back on the winning road. Burns has done a credtiable job at the inital sack and has been doing quite well at the plate, too, but he lacks the hitting power that Greenberg possesses. Hank himself says the Tigers will get going before long, pointing out that the Detroit club recently ran up eight in a row without his help.

CHICAGO CUBS DEFEAT GIANTS

Bruins Get Even Break in Series With 8-5 Victory

Chicago, June 4 (AP)—The Cubs collected 18 hits off four New York Giant pitchers today for an 8 to 5 win and an even break in the short series.

Lon Warneke, chalking up his fifth pitching victory of the season, had little difficulty with any of the Giants except Mel Ott, who hammered out his eighth and ninth homers of the season, driving in three of the New York runs.

It was Clyde Castleman's seventh start on the mound for the Giants, and the seventh time he has been batted from the box.

He lasted until the fifth today, allowing six hits and four runs in the third, and a run each in the second and fourth. Dick Coffman, who relieved him, was taken out for Carl Hubbell in the sixth, but three hits and a walk by the next four men up sent Hubbell to the showers, and Freddy Fitzsimmons wound up the game.

Billy Herman and Ethan Allen each had four hits to lead the Cub attack. One of Herman's smashes was his 21st double of the year, to increase his major league lead in that department.

TIGERS GO ON HITTING SPREE

Bengals Get Ten Runs in One Inning, Defeat A's, 18 to 9

Philadelphia, June 4 (AP)—Detroit's Tigers went on a batting rampage, and took advantage of some weird Philadelphia fielding and pitching, to whip the Athletics 18 to 9 today and gain a hold on fourth place in the league standings as Washington dropped a game.

The champions open a three-game series at Washington tomorrow. Today's victory gave them the present series, two games to one.

The wildest inning the Tigers have experienced this year was today's third frame, in which they pushed ten runs across the plate, fourteen batters getting six hits and four walks, two of the Athletics' six errors were committed, and Manager Mickey Cochrane slammed out a home run inside the park with Billy Rogell, Marvin Owen and Pete Fox on the bases.

Elden Auker won his fourth victory of the year, holding the A's scoreless until the Tigers had 17 runs and to three runs until the ninth when, with his mates leading 18 to 3, he was touched for four hits good for six Philadelphia runs as the Tigers made two fielding bobbles.

Ten Detroit players batted in the fifth, when three Philadelphia errors and a wild pitch aided four hits to produce six Tiger runs. Ten of the Athletics came to the plate in the ninth with Pinch-hitter Mailho opening it with a walk and ending it with a foul fly.

Gordon (Dusty) Rhodes, starting on the mound for Philadelphia, was the losing pitcher. He was knocked out in the third, and Milton Bullock, who relieved him, met a similar fate before the inning ended. Stuart Flythe, rookie hurler fresh from North Carolina State college, came in to be touched for the four runs Cochrane's homer brought in, and six more in the fifth, before he injured a finger and was replaced by Bill Dietrich in the sixth.

STARS GATHER AT MILWAUKEE

Jesse Owens and Lash Figured to Break Records

Milwaukee, June 4. (AP)—Track and field stars from the smaller midwestern colleges will battle big name stars for recognition as Olympic talent tomorrow night under the floodlights at Marquette university stadium in the 11th annual central intercollegiate conference championship meet.

The co-stars of the Big Ten meet at Columbus, O., two weeks ago, Ohio State's Jesse Owens and Don Lash, Indiana's great middle distance ace, will lead their forces in another battle for the team title won last year by the Buckeyes. Owens will compete in both dashes and the broad jump, and may take a whirl at the low hurdles. Lash will be seeking new marks in the mile and two mile runs.

The field, biggest in the history of the meet, includes nearly 300 athletes from 33 institutions. Judging from previous performances, it packs serious danger to 10 of the 16 events.

Buckeyes Favored

Owens and Lash, particularly are qualified to better present marks in the 11-year-old meet. Other records may be established, however, in the 880 yard run, high hurdles, pole vault and discus throw.

Defending champions in 12 events will return. Among them is Dan Caldemeyer of Indiana, whose 14.4 seconds in the recent Drake relays was .3 of a second under the record mark he hung up in last year's high hurdles event.

In other competition this spring Al Haller of Wisconsin bettered the centrals record for the pole vault and Paul Halleck of Ohio U. the discus mark. Ward Cuff, of Marquette, has been beating the meet record of 213 feet 8 inches for the javelin.

A close fight is expected for the team title and the Rockne Memorial challenge trophy, founded in honor of the man who, with C. M. Jennings of Marquette and Ralph Young of Michigan State, originated the central games in 1926 after the Western Conference had barred all but members schools from its meet.

Ohio State and Owens are given an advance edge, but the Buckeyes will be pressed by the Hoosiers, Notre Dame, unbeaten; Wisconsin, Pittsburgh and Marquette.

Preliminaries will be held tomorrow afternoon with all finals at night.

Cochrane Collapses In Tigers' Dugout

Philadelphia, June 4. (AP)—Manager Mike Cochrane, of the Detroit Tigers, collapsed in the dugout after hitting a home run in the third inning of today's game with the Athletics.

A physician who treated him in the dressing room said he was in need of a thorough rest to avert a nervous breakdown.

Cochrane was able to leave with the team for Washington.

The collapse of Cochrane, who has been weighted down with executive duties as vice president of the Detroit baseball club in addition to those as player-manager, came with Al Simmons, centerfielder, on the bench with a sprained ankle.

The double misfortune, coming during the first series of the Tigers' second eastern invasion, recalled the disaster that overtook the club at the start of its first eastern tour. In a series at Washington Hank Greenberg suffered an arm fracture, from which he has not recovered, and Cochrane was put out of action for several days when a foul tip struck him on the instep.

Rock forts, used by people of the Far North many centuries ago, are reported to have been found on Kodiak Island, Aalska.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Arleene Degeneffe, and Gilbert Auger, brother of the groom, was his attendant.

The bride wore a lovely gown of white satin, floor length, net veil edged in lace and carried an arm bouquet of snapdragons and lilies. The bridesmaid wore a pale blue satin, floor length, gown and carried a bouquet of snapdragons and roses.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bridegroom's parents, and a five o'clock dinner at the home of the bride's parents to the bridal party and immediate families.

The young couple will make their home in Gary, Ind., where Mr. Auger has a position.

Methodists Observe Anniversary Sunday

The Methodist Episcopal church of this city will reach its sixty-fifth birthday on next Sunday, having been organized on June 6, 1871. The pastor has planned an observance of the occasion and will be assisted by the choir, directed by R. P. Bowers. While there has been no attempt to have present the church's former pastors, impossible because of the closing of the conference year, several of the pastors will have a part in the service by proxy. The pastor will read communications from these former ministers of the church and will make these communications a part of the worship hour.

The church in its early beginning met first in the homes of some of the charter members, then moved from place to place, mostly in empty store buildings and halls. But the church it self was finally born in a little red school house which was then on the site where the library now stands.

Among the names in the early Methodist class, were those of Beach, Stonehouse, Brotherton, Hatton, Hawkins, Fletcher and Dodge. During the period of existence since 1869 when the first sermon was preached by an ordained clergyman, the church has had twenty-three pastors. Those who have served the church late enough to be remembered by the present living citizens are: the Reverends J. M. Kerridge, James Pascoe, Frederick Spence, King D. Beach, Guy V. Hoard, Frank H. Cookson, C. M. Merrill, R. C. G. Williams and the present pastor, Ross W. Stoakes.

Not only the members of the church but any friends are cordially invited to attend the anniversary service at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

Railway Executive Dies In Minneapolis

Minneapolis, June 3 (AP)—Austin E. Wallace, 57, for 11 years vice president and general manager of the Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie railway, died today after a brief illness.

Wallace began his railroad career in 1902 following his graduation from Harvard university. He was a native of Nashua, N. H. After working at Larimore, N. D., he came to Chicago where he was superintendent of the Chicago, Rhode Island and Pacific railway from 1912 to 1918. Later that year he became assistant general superintendent of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway from 1912 to 1918. Later that year he became assistant general superintendent of the Erie railroad at Youngstown, O., and was manager at Chicago from 1920 to 1922.

Wallace came to Minneapolis to assume duties in 1922 as general manager of the Soo Line and became vice president three years later.

Semaphore Light Poles Are Marked Yellow And Black

Following state regulations, all semaphore light poles in the city of Escanaba have been painted with alternate black and yellow bands to make them easily distinguished by motorists.

Four poles at Ludington and Tenth, and two poles at Ludington and Stephenson avenue, both state highway intersections, have been repainted with the yellow and black combination.

CHANGES MADE IN BUS STOPS

Safety Zones Are Now On Near Side Of Intersections

Effective today, bus stops on Ludington street will be on the near side instead of the car side of street intersections. The change was made at the suggestion of the police department, and the city engineering department has completed the work of remarking the street to conform. The new system will add to the number of car parking spaces on Ludington street, due to the fact that the bus stops will utilize the fire hydrant zone.

Former bus stop lines on the far side of intersections have been painted over, and added parking stalls restored. The words: "Bus Stop" are being stenciled on all safety zones reserved for passengers boarding buses, and police officers have been instructed to see that parking regulations are not disregarded in the bus stop areas. It is believed that the change will result in greater safety for both traffic and pedestrians.
